Shopping unit seen in proposal

by JOE SWICKARD

A privately developed shopping plaza-office building may be built in conjunction with the planned downtown municipal parking garage, according to a proposal under study by the Arlington Heights village administration.

The proposal is part of the administration's report on the garage that will be reviewed at a special village board meeting Aug. 30.

Frank Charlton, assistant village manager, said a five-story commercial and office building could be located adjoining the garage proposed for the corner of Vail Avenue and Sigwalt Street. The building, according to the preliminary plans, would be located on the municipal parking lot north of the Dunton Court shopping center.

CHARLTON SAID a combined commercial-parking complex would have several built-in advantages.

A shopping-office complex would provide patrons for the garages, in addition to generating tax money and increasing the central business district's assessed valuation, Charlton said.

No price has been placed on the commercial building, he said.

"We have talked to several developers about this. From what we have heard it would be a feasible thing," he said.

HE DECLINED to discuss how the private developers and investors would be attracted to such a project, saying that there are three village committees that could explore it further.

The committees include the fiscal policy planning committee, the downtown redevelopment committee and the commercial and industrial development commission.

Another proposal under study by the administration calls for parking spaces in the garage to be leased to local businesses for their employees.

Under this option, existing parking areas in the central business district would be made available for shoppers.

The garage, whether built by itself or in tandem with a commercial development, would be financed by the village.

Just one brief breath from Keith Seherer sends bubbles galore flying.

State aid to erase deficit

Dist. 21 cancels tax hike referendum

by DIANE GRANAT

An Oct. 9 referendum asking for a tax increase has been canceled by the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education because revised state-aid figures show the district will avoid a deficit budget in the upcoming school year.

Supt. Kenneth Gill asked the board to reconsider the referendum at a special meeting Monday because of updated state-aid figures the district received last week.

The new figures presented Monday indicate that Dist. 21 will end the 1976-77 school year with $819,033 in surplus cash balance, instead of a deficit of $65,319 as originally projected.

The board approved holding a referendum for a tax hike of 30 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation at its Aug. 12 meeting. The proposed increase would have raised the tax bill $30 for a home with an equalized assessed value of $10,000.

John Barger, associate superintendent, said the additional funds came from three primary sources:

- The state office of education said Dist. 21 will receive about $470,000 more in state aid during 1976-77 than originally planned. In its budget projections, the administration anticipated receiving $4.37 million in state aid, but as a result of changes in the state aid formula and increased appropriations, the state is expected to give the district $4.84 million for 1976-77.

- An additional state-aid payment made to Dist. 21 in June provided $370,827, increasing the surplus cash balance at the end of the 1975-76 school year. Barger said when budget projections were made in the spring, the administration did not know whether that payment would be made, nor whether it would be for the full amount.

- Cutbacks in expenditures during the 1975-76 school year provided an additional $43,000 in cash available at the end of June. This money, combined with the $370,000 extra state aid payment, left the district with $974,144 in surplus cash at the end of 1975-76, instead of $560,000 as originally expected.

Barger said the district will still overspend its revenue for the coming year by $155,111, but this amount will be covered by the surplus cash.

Barger said the new figures show that the district can operate without any financial problems in the coming year without a tax increase.

The new projections, however, are subject to change because of action on the state-aid formula currently pending in the Illinois General Assembly, Barger said.

If the legislature does not fund a provision in the state-aid formula bill, which ensures that no school district will get less state money this year because of changes in the formula, Dist. 21 would lose about $300,000, Barger said. The legislature is expected to act in November on Gov. Daniel Walker's amendatory veto of the bill.

IN ADDITION, Barger said Dist. 21 will be affected by a dispute over a $53.23 million penalty levied against the Chicago schools for closing 16 days early last school year.

If the full penalty is assessed against Chicago, Dist. 21 may gain $150,000, but if Chicago wins a suit challenging the penalty, Dist. 21 could lose an additional $300,000, Barger said.

The tax referendum was recommended to the board in July by a citizens' committee studying the district's finances. The committee was appointed this spring after the board made major cuts in the 1976-77 budget.

HERB STEIN, spokesman for the citizens group, said Monday the committee was "operating with what we thought were good estimates of income. I don't think the finance committee, if given these facts today, would recommend a referendum," he said.

Gill said although the district's financial picture looks better, "the long-range difficulties for financing still exist." But he said the district's condition is not serious enough at this time to warrant a tax referendum.

"People shouldn't have to vote on a tax increase unless it is absolutely necessary," Gill said.

Gill originally asked the board to delay the referendum for a year, but rather than deciding to postpone the vote, board members decided to cancel the referendum and reconsider it at a later date.

Dist. 214 picks Arlington Hts. man

John I. Gmitro Monday was appointed from a field of four candidates to the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Gmitro, 39, of 349 S. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, replaces Jack Matthews, who resigned Aug. 1 after serving on the board for five years.

Gmitro, former president of the Stonegate Homeowners' Assn., says he views the board position as an opportunity to participate in "The American system of local government."

HE SAID HE also looks on the appointment, which will expire in April 1977, as an opportunity to "both contribute to and learn from the board, and by next spring, have a firm basis on which to decide whether or not to run for election in my own right."

Gmitro said he was asked last spring to seek endorsement by the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 School Caucus, but declined.

Gmitro has two sons attending Miner Junior High School and one son at Windsor School in Dist. 25. He said he is "interested in where they are heading to," and believes his board activities might "have a direct influence on their high school experience."

Gmitro is a manager of engineering analysis for Kraftco Corp., Glenview.

OTHER CANDIDATES who sought the position include Gayatri P. Tewari, Des Plaines, who ran unsuccessfully for the Dist. 214 Board last April; James R. Lathan, Arlington Heights, who is active with the Wheeling High School Band Boosters; and Don C. McGlothlin, Wheeling.

Sharrie Hildebrandt, Arlington Heights, withdrew her name from consideration before the board interviewed candidates.

Matthews resigned from the board because he is retiring from the Shell Oil Co. and moving to Pekin, Ill., where he will manage an office supply store.

Maddox running for President

- In a tiny hotel press room, crowded with reporters, TV technicians and backers from the right-wing Liberty Lobby, Lester Maddox announced Monday he is running for president again. Maddox, who preceded Jimmy Carter as governor of Georgia, said he would seek the American Independent Party's nomination at its Chicago Convention later this week.

Wearing a red, white and blue tie with stars and stripes and the Liberty Bell emblazoned on it, he said he was not running in order to take votes from the two major parties.

"I hope the Maddox entrance into this can bring some degree of debate before the American people and let them see the truth about what's taking place," said Maddox, who sought the Democratic nomination in 1968.

He will be challenged for the independents' nomination in Chicago by a group of conservatives led by former Wallace fundraiser Richard Viguerie.

Maddox — who once kept ax handles at his Atlanta restaurant to discourage blacks from coming in — said the GOP "made a disastrous mistake" by not nominating Ronald

Dist. 21 cancels tax referendum

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education Monday canceled a referendum asking for a tax increase because the district's budget got a boost from revised state-aid figures. Supt. Kenneth Gill asked the board Monday to reconsider the referendum because updated state-aid figures show that Dist. 21 will end the 1976-77 school year with a $819,033 surplus. A $65,319 deficit originally had been forecast by the administration. The board Aug. 12 approved asking district residents Oct. 9 to allow a tax hike of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation which would have raised tax bills $30 for homes assessed at $10,000.

Bond set in arson-murder

David Rhoads, 27, of Palatine, charged with the July 17 arson-murder of his wife, received a $250,000 bond Monday at a preliminary hearing in Cook County Circuit Court. Rhoads, 409 N. Northwest Hwy., is accused of using gasoline to set fire to his wife Vicki, 18, at the home of his wife's parents, 306 N. Morris Dr., Palatine. Mrs. Rhoads died July 18 in a Chicago hospital. Rhoads is scheduled to appear in the Evanston branch of Circuit Court Sept. 3 for presentation of evidence.

$300 taken in station heist

Police are searching for a man wanted for the Monday night armed robbery of the Mobil Service Station, Hintz and Buffalo Grove roads, Wheeling. Police reported that the man, armed with a .32 caliber revolver, took an estimated $300 from the service station at 10:15 p.m. and was last seen in a red car eastbound on Hintz Road. The man is described as 6 feet, 4 inches tall, 250 pounds with long dark hair. Police reported that the man wore sunglasses during the robbery. Other details on the incident were unavailable Monday night.

Robbery 'take' $5,000

Two armed bandits escaped with about $5,000 in the robbery late Sunday afternoon of the Wilo K Foods store, 943 Piper Ln., Prospect Heights. The cash amount was confirmed Monday night by a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's Police who said that arrests of the two men are expected "within 48 hours." A stolen car used in the holdup has been recovered by Sheriff's police who have declined to give details of the investigation. Both robbers have been described as wearing denim jackets and pants. A third unidentified man involved in the robbery drove the getaway car.

Body identification today

Police today hope to confirm the identity of a man whose body was found last week in Potawatomi Woods in Wheeling Township. Investigator Charles Schenk of the Cook County Sheriff's Police said Monday that dental charts will be used to determine the identity of the body found Thursday. Police believe the body may be that of a Mount Prospect man, John Drag, 37, whose abandoned auto recently was found in the Cook County Forest Preserve. Police are investigating the cause of death.

Sept. 28 decision deadline

A Herald staff report

Area park districts are considering passage of a special tax designed to eliminate the use of tax anticipation warrants to meet spiraling operating expenses.

Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker signed the amendment to the state's park district code Aug. 12, allowing Illinois park districts to establish a working cash fund.

The law requires interested park boards to adopt a resolution establishing the new fund by the last Tuesday in September of each year through 1979.

Park boards, therefore, must adopt the resolution, publish it and have it on file for a 30-day public inspection by Sept. 28 if they are to begin receiving the special funds next year. Action must be taken this week if the tax is to be applied to the 1976-77 levy.

PARK DISTRICTS will be allowed to levy a maximum 2.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which will be deposited into the special working cash fund, and will be used only to subsidize "ordinary and necessary" park district expenditures, the law states.

Residents of each park district can block the establishment of the special levy by signing a petition in opposition to the tax and filing it with their park board before Sept. 28.

At least five per cent of the number of residents who voted in the most recent park board election in that district must sign the objecting petition to make it valid, according to the new law.

The park district then must conduct a referendum within 90 days from the date the petition was filed to seek approval from a majority of voters to establish the new levy.

Park districts can automatically levy the special tax if residents do not file an objecting petition.

PARK DISTRICTS are required to reimburse the special funds within the fiscal year covered by the resolution. The fund will provide districts with a borrowing system, on which no interest is charged, to pay for only normal operating expenses and not special projects.

The law states the special funds can be transferred to the district's general fund "for the payment of salaries and other corporate expenses so as to avoid, whenever possible, the issuance of tax anticipation warrants."

The law requires park boards to adopt a new resolution to establish the special levy for each new fiscal year.

The provision, which expires after 1979, was created to give park districts financial relief from inflation.

THE WHEELING PARK District has passed a resolution calling for the tax to be added to the 1976-77 levy. David Phillips, park district director said the levy is to be adopted early in September.

"Basically this will enable park districts to stay away from tax anticipation warrants," said Phillips. "This would permit us to have the cash on hand and even out our cash flow problems." He said the district plans to levy the full amount permitted by law, giving the Wheeling district an estimated $25,000.

Three other park districts have scheduled meetings on the new proposal.

The River Trails Park District will meet at 8 p.m. today at the park office, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. The Prospect Heights Park District will meet at 8:30 p.m. today at the Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights. Hoffman Estates Park District officials will meet at 8:30 p.m. today at 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

THE DES PLAINES Park Board met Monday night to consider the new levy for the first time.

Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows and the Mount Prospect park districts have not made a decision on the tax, but all are interested, officials said.

Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director, said he believes the board will set up the reserve account. He said it will permit his district to borrow funds without paying an interest rate.

Jack Claes, Elk Grove director, said the proposal must be studied further, but believes it will be approved. If passed, the tax would bring an extra $75,000 into the district, nearly covering the district's $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants, Claes said.

ROLLING MEADOWS Park District officials have asked for a report from the board attorney.

Thomas T. Tayler, director of the Mount Prospect Park District, said the tax will not be included in the 1976-77 levy "because it came too late for us. It's something we may consider in the future." The district passed its 1976-77 levy in June.

The Buffalo Grove Park District is studying the tax but has not made a decision.

Two-part parks vote slated Oct. 2

The Arlington Heights Park District will present a two-part $2.8 million development referendum Oct. 2 for construction of the Nike Base golf course and six other park sites.

The decision to separate the golf course and other development projects came on a 3-to-0 vote, Monday with one commissioner, Robert Throckmorton, passing.

Comr. Robert Rohleder, in favor of giving the voters two choices on the Oct. 2 referendum, said that combining all the proposed development projects into one ballot question would "just garbage it up."

PARK PRES. Lloyd Meyer, who also favored splitting the questions, said the golf course is too important to be endangered by inclusion in one large issue.

The decision to divide the questions came after a special public meeting last week to sound out citizen reaction and extended discussion at Monday's regular board meeting.

Bruce Westerberg, representing the Ivy Hill Civic Assn., presented commissioners with a petition saying the referendum would be supported by his organization only if the two issues were combined.

The Ivy Hill petition also said the group would "vigorously oppose any bond issue" that did not include provisions for improvements and development of sites other than the golf course.

ROHLERDER TERMED the golf course need "urgent" and said while the other park improvements are necessary, there is not the pressing need of the golf facility, which will, commissioners hope, provide excess funds for other park projects within a few years.

The other park projects under consideration include four undeveloped sites on the north side and two on the south side of the district in addition to tennis courts and softball lighting. The park board will meet in a special session next Tuesday to decide which projects will be included in the second referendum question.

The golf course will cost about $1.5 million to complete and all the other suggested projects carry a total price tag of about $1.3 million.

Free busing schedule gets Dist. 21 revision

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will provide free busing to Stevenson School this school year for students living in Willow Park Estates and Appletree apartments, but students residing in the Dun-Lo Highlands and Frenchman's Cove subdivisions will no longer receive free bus service.

The Dist. 21 Board of Education last week revised its busing schedule to provide transportation in areas with hazardous walking routes.

Children from Willow Park Estates and Appletree apartments in Wheeling Township must now walk through the parking lots of nearby apartment complexes to get to Stevenson School, 1375 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, said John Barger, associate superintendent.

THE OTHER ROUTE to the school would be along River Road on the east and Palatine Road on the north, also considered a hazardous route. However, if children walk along the main roads the distance would be more than 1½ miles, allowing state reimbursement for busing, Barger said.

Dist. 21 last year offered optional busing for those areas on a fee basis. About 100 students will be eligible for the free bus service, Barger said.

The bus service was removed from Frenchman's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights and Dun-Lo Highlands in Wheeling Township because the routes to schools from those areas are no longer considered dangerous, Barger said.

Barger said about 10 students from Frenchman's Cove were bused last year to Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove, because sidewalks in the area were not completed. However, walks connecting the subdivision to the main route have been finished in the past year, he said.

Dismiss traffic charge against girl

A traffic case against a 17-year-old Arlington Heights girl accused of driving her auto into a Mount Prospect police car was dismissed Monday in Cook County Circuit Court.

Lanne R. Liput, 206 S. Waterman Ave., Arlington Heights, was accused of turning into the path of a police car on an emergency run the night of July 30 on Mount Prospect Road at Wisconsin Street in Des Plaines.

Ms. Liput had been cited for failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, but a formal complaint against her was not signed by Mount Prospect police, who failed to show up in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Monday to testify against her, a court clerk spokesman said. Mrs. Liput's case was then dismissed, the spokesman said.

Ford boss of war: Reds

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — North Korea called President Ford a "boss of war" Monday for sending an aircraft carrier into its waters and said it would "annihilate the U.S. imperialists" if fighting broke out.

The United States and South Korea kept their forces on stepped-up alert and put a news blackout on all military maneuvers in the aftermath of last Wednesday's ax slaying of two American officers. A 7th fleet naval task force steamed through the Japan Sea toward Korea.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, the (North) Korean Central News Agency said:

"Ford, boss of war, sent a U.S. naval task force with the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Midway carrying some 100 planes and guided missiles as the axis into the waters of the northern half of the republic and proclaimed an emergency alert order in the whole waters of Korea."

The 979-foot Midway is powered by conventional turbines, not nuclear reactors.

Quoting the North Korean newspaper Rodong Sinmun, the agency said "300,000 U.S. troops and South Korean puppet army (soldiers) in full combat trim are deployed . . . at attacking positions along the military demarcation line."

In a separate dispatch, the agency said "officers and common soldiers of the (North) Korean Peoples Army stand ready to annihilate the U.S. imperialists if they ignite a new war."

The bellicose remarks contrasted sharply with a mildly worded message North Korean President Kim Il Sung sent earlier to the U.N. Command in South Korea expressing regret over the killings of the Americans in the truce village of Panmunjom.

Both the United States and South Korea rejected Kim's note as unacceptable and a spokesman for the American military command in Seoul said the 42,000 U.S. troops in South Korea and the 600,000-man South Korean armed forces were "on an increased alert status."

Other than that, U.S. officials kept secret all U.S. military activities in and around Korea. They declined to disclose the specific location of a U.S. 7th Fleet task force consisting of the Midway, one guided-missile cruiser and four frigates.

Protest rallies continued in South Korea against last week's incident in which North Korean guards hacked the two U.S. officers to death in a dispute over the trimming of a tree.

Kim's unprecedented personal message — the first he had ever sent to the U.N. command — offered no apology for the assault. It simply said:

"... It is regretful that an incident occurred in the joint security area at Panmunjom this time. An effort must be made so that such incidents may not recur in the future. For this purpose both sides should make efforts."

"We don't find this message to be acceptable," said a State Department spokesman in Washington. "There's no acknowledgement of responsibility by the North Koreans."

Ford, meantime, called for a Tuesday meeting of the Korean peace-keeping commission to seek assurances from North Korea of the safety of American troops in the Panmunjom demilitarized zone.

"The United States is anxious to cooperate in the relaxation of tensions but we want to make sure there is no miscalculation regarding our firmness in the area," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters at Ford's vacation resort in Vail, Colo.

THE U.S. AIRCRAFT carrier Midway, with deck planes in combat readiness, is conducting operations off the eastern coast of Korea as a result of last week's incident in the DMZ in which two American officers were killed.

Quakes jolt China and Philippines

by United Press International

The second strong earthquake in two days jolted Szechuan Province in south central China Monday and the Philippine Islands were hit by a major aftershock of the Aug. 17 quake that left 8,000 persons dead or missing.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage from the quakes, the latest in a series of powerful upheavals this year that have killed tens of thousands — far more than 50,000 lives if estimates of casualties in China are included.

Despite the heavy toll from earthquakes this year, Scientists have been unable to agree whether the calamities are related.

The Chinese temblor was the third strong quake in Szechuan in a week and the fourth in the country since the strongest earthquake in 12 years devastated a northern industrial area July 28.

Although Szechuan is China's most populous province, with more than 66 million people, the three recent jolts struck mountainous regions far from large cities.

Most seismological stations which recorded the Chinese temblor, centered about 900 miles northwest of Hong Kong, said it measured about 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale. A monitoring station in Strasbourg, France, recorded it at an intensity of 7.25 to 7.5, slightly smaller than the 8.0 quake that devastated the southern Philippines last week.

Szechuan's Sunday quake registered about 6.8. Scientists said both tremors apparently were aftershocks from the area's Aug. 16 quake, which measured 6.9.

In the Philippines, the strongest shock Monday was recorded at the industrial town of Iligan, about 500 miles south of Manila. The Philippine News Agency said residents panicked and drivers abandoned their cars in the streets, causing massive traffic jams, but apparently no deaths or serious damage.

The sixth major aftershock from last Tuesday's disaster was much weaker in Zamboanga City, where 2,000 refugees are housed.

Philippine officials said 175,000 persons were left homeless by the Aug. 17 quake and subsequent tidal waves.

A medium-strength quake which registered 4.75 on the Richter scale struck the Greek island of Cephalonia Monday and a weak temblor shook central Japan. There were no reports of casualties or serious damage from either quake.

And a mild earthquake measuring 3.0 rumbled through Fontana, Calif., early Sunday, but caused no damage.

Chinese authorities announced the Aug. 16 quake in Szechuan about 24 hours after it occurred, saying it caused only "very slight" damage because it had been predicted and precautionary measures had been taken. All three tremors hit an area about 140 miles north of the capital of Chentu.

Radio monitors said Szechuan and neighboring provinces have remained under a quake alert since last Monday.

Officially, about 30,000 lives have been lost in earthquakes this year, three times higher than the average. The toll includes 23,000 killed in Guatemala Feb. 4; 900 in northeastern Italy May 6; 600 in Indonesia July 14, and more than 3,750 in the Philippines last week.

Egyptian commandos seize hijackers

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian army commandos disguised as maintenance workers stormed a hijacked Egyptian jetliner in Luxor airport Monday, captured three Arab gunmen and freed the crew and passengers unharmed.

The Cairo government accused Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy of masterminding the air seizure and likened the retaking of the plane to last month's Israeli raid on a hijacked airliner in Entebbe, Uganda.

The guerrillas seized the Egyptian Boeing 737 carrying 101 persons during a 450-mile domestic flight from Cairo to Luxor.

At first they said they would blow up the plane unless they were supplied with fuel to fly on to Libya, then changed their minds and demanded freedom for five Arab prisoners held in Egypt.

Premier Mamdouh Salem, who supervised the commando assault, said an army officer crept under the plane and let the air out of its front wheels while government officials negotiated with the hijackers from the airport's control tower.

The negotiators told the hijackers the plane had a technical fault and could not take off and persuaded them to release women and children as well as three elderly passengers, Salem said.

The freed hostages were questioned about the hijackers, the positions they held inside the plane and the weapons they were carrying. A plan for storming the aircraft then was drawn up by a group of army and air force officers.

Army commandos disguised as maintenance workers boarded the aircraft and examined it, Salem told a news conference in Cairo. They left allegedly to pick up the necessary spare parts" and later came back and managed to win the hijackers' confidence.

They then attacked the gunmen with iron tools and overpowered them in 10-minute battle.

All three guerrillas were injured, one seriously, Salem said.

None of the six-man crew or 95 passengers — including 16 Arabs and 79 non-Arabs, mostly French and Japanese tourists — was hurt. It was not known if any Americans were aboard.

Salem said two of the hijackers carried pistols and the third was wielding a dagger and carrying a suitcase full of explosives.

One carried a Jordanian passport, another a Kuwaiti passport and the third had Palestinian travel documents, he said. All three confessed the "operation was financed by Khadafy."

Ford boss of war: Reds

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — North Korea called President Ford a "boss of war" Monday for sending an aircraft carrier into its waters and said it would "annihilate the U.S. imperialists" if fighting broke out.

The United States and South Korea kept their forces on stepped-up alert and put a news blackout on all military maneuvers in the aftermath of last Wednesday's ax slaying of two American officers. A 7th fleet naval task force steamed through the Japan Sea toward Korea.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, the (North) Korean Central News Agency said:

"Ford, boss of war, sent a U.S. naval task force with the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Midway carrying some 100 planes and guided missiles as the axis into the waters of the northern half of the republic and proclaimed an emergency alert order in the whole waters of Korea."

The 979-foot Midway is powered by conventional turbines, not nuclear reactors.

Cuban exile says he was trained by hunt

A Cuban exile on trial for seven Miami bombings and two attempted bombings testified Monday he was trained in the use of explosives by Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt. Rolando Otero, 33, testifying in his own defense at his U.S. District Court trial, also said he had taken part in an unsuccessful plot to kill Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro. Otero said Hunt, now imprisoned at the Eglin Air Force Base federal correctional facility, was among his instructors in training for the abortive Bay of Pigs landing in Cuba. Otero denied he had anything to do with the Miami bombings.

Bailey compares Patty to Mindzenty

Patricia Hearst's treatment at the hands of the Sumbionese Liberation Army is comparable to that of Cardinal Josef Mindzenty, the Hungarian prelate who in 1948 was tortured into confessing to treason charges, according to F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst's attorney. Bailey revealed details of a psychological report on Miss Hearst for the first time in an article in the Ladies' Home Journal, the first of two excerpts from his forthcoming book, "The Trial of Patty Hearst." Dr. Louis Jolyon West, head of UCLA's psychiatry department, and Dr. Margaret Thaler Singer, a psychologist at the University of California, authors of the 200-page report, were among four experts appointed by the court to examine Miss Hearst.

Attica inmates on 'general strike'

About 90 per cent of the inmates at Attica state prison in New York, scene of the nation's bloodiest jail riot, went on a "general strike" Monday to back demands for parole and sentencing reform. Inmates stayed in their cells, reading, sleeping and typing. Only about 100 prisoners went to breakfast and about 350 inmates went to lunch. The remainder of the 1,843 inmates were fed in their cells, a prison spokesman said. Corrections Commissioner Benjamin Ward met with 10 inmate representatives Monday afternoon in an attempt to resolve the dispute at the jail, where 43 persons died in a 1971 prison rebellion.

Viking I fails to find Mars life forms

A Viking 1 instrument looking for organic material on Mars found nothing in a second test that would indicate life forms had been present in the past, a project biologist said Monday. An earlier test in the gas chromatograph mass spectrometer that searches for carbon compounds — the building blocks of life on Earth — also was negative. Scientists had searched at the level of one part per million in the first test.

Grand jury probes Chowchilla kidnaping

A Madera, Calif. grand jury Monday began investigating the kidnaping of 26 children and their school bus driver at Chowchilla, Calif., July 15. One of the first witnesses was bus driver Frank Edward Ray. Ray appeared nervous as he waited to be called into the hearing room and when asked by reporters if he could identify three suspects as the men who stopped his bus at gunpoint he said, "Not yet, not at this time."

S. African police open fire on blacks

South African police opened fire Monday on black gangs trying to enforce a three-day general strike among black workers, killing one demonstrator and wounding several others, police officials said. White-owned companies reported the strike was 80 per cent effective. Police said blacks armed with clubs converged on crowded bus stops and train stations in the all-black suburb of Soweto and threatened to attack black workers trying to get to work. Deputy Police Commissioner David Kriel said riot units in full battle gear fired into "gangs of intimidators" three times, killing one man. Unconfirmed reports said six others were wounded.

Russian mooncraft lands in Siberia

An unmanned Russian spacecraft landed in Siberia with rock and soil samples from the moon in the Soviet Union's first successful lunar mission in more than two years, the Tass news agency announced Monday. A six-foot moon core sample was recovered from the Luna 24 craft Sunday for analysis in a Moscow laboratory of the USSR Academy of Sciences. Pravda said samples will be offered to other countries for study. Tass hailed the 15-day mission of Luna 24 as "a new success for Soviet science and technology."

U.S. embassy turns down asylum request

The United States embassy turned down a request for asylum by a Russian citizen who dashed past Soviet guards and into the residence of U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr., an American spokesman said Monday in Moscow. The embassy spokesman said the man, a Soviet citizen in his late 30s or early 40s, was escorted from Stoessel's official residence and arrested a few yards outside the gate by Soviet uniformed police.

duties and played golf and tennis.

His running mate, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, was to join him for strategic talks later in the week.

Monday, Dole got a national security briefing at the White House from CIA director George Bush.

Ironically, it was Bush who became chairman of the Republican National Committee when Dole was forced out by Nixon after the 1972 elections. And Bush's acceptance of the CIA post automatically took him out of the running for the vice presidential nomination for which some thought he was an early favorite.

Dole, who will address the American Legion convention in Seattle Wednesday, a day after Carter does, was put in an embarrassing position by publication Sunday of an interview he gave Time magazine just before he was picked as Ford's running mate.

Dole suggested Ford would be wasting time in Vail when he should be out campaigning. Ford spokesman Ron Nessen responded, "It would be fair to say there will be a lot of work here, as Sen. Dole will find out when he gets here."

In a speech to a group of California businessmen, Carter said Nixon vetoed 41 bills in six years. "In only two years, Ford has already vetoed 53 bills, about four times as many bills per year as his predecessor," he said, "and to be four times as negative as Mr. Ford's predecessor is a remarkable achievement."

"... Do you know what the basic Republican anti-inflation policy has been? To put people out of work — 'Cooling down the economy' they call it, because that sounds nicer."

A Harris survey published Monday showed Carter is well received by the 1,494 voters interviewed across the country. By a margin of 82 to 7 per cent they credit him with having done a "good job of unifying the Democratic party for the first time in years" and by 75 to 5 per cent they regard him as "a man of high integrity."

Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss said Carter may make a four or five-day whistlestop campaign tour next month starting in St. Louis and rolling northeastward to New England.

In another development:

• John Connally told UPI in Houston he thinks Ford can close the gap and defeat Carter in November. "He could lose," Connally said of Ford. "I don't expect him to. He's got a tremendous gap to close but I think he can close it."

"I have said the President was going to have to be more aggressive and bolder both in his campaign style and his campaign proposals. But he certainly lived up to that in his acceptance speech. I thought it was the best speech I ever heard him make."

Carter calls Ford 'four times as negative as Nixon'

by United Press International

Jimmy Carter, after staying pretty much out of sight while the Republicans slugged it out during the past month, began his campaign attacks on President Ford Monday.

Ford's staff met Monday in Vail, Colo., for the first formal strategy session of the campaign while the President took care of some official

Walker approves anti-fraud bills

Gov. Daniel Walker Monday signed into law two bills designed to keep unscrupulous medical providers from cheating the state on Medicaid payments. "One bill will help us make sure that tests in laboratories are actually performed and that the state is being charged fairly," Walker told a news conference. "Another bill will help us detect whether the state is being billed for nonexistent eyeglasses and medicine that never was dispensed."

Walker said although all fraud cannot be eliminated through legislation, "these bills give us the tools to attack it." One of the measures requires doctors and hospitals to list the name of clinical laboratories used to conduct tests on Medicaid patients and to detail how much money the lab charged for the work. The second bill requires medical providers, such as pharmacists and optometrists, to get signed receipts from public aid recipients for drugs, eyeglasses and other medical equipment.

Walker also signed a bill exempting individual retirement accounts from the state income tax. Such retirement funds permit persons who aren't covered by private or public pension plans to put aside up to $1,500 a year. The federal government does not tax individual retirement accounts.

High court hears ethics arguments

The Illinois Supreme Court Monday heard arguments in Chicago on the legality of placing three proposed constitutional amendments on the November election ballot, then took the matter under advisement. The court gave no indication when it would rule on the case.

At issue are three amendments proposed by a group called the Coalition for Political Honesty. The amendments would: prohibit legislators from holding two public jobs at the same time; keep them from collecting their salaries in an annual lump sum, and prohibit them from voting on bills in which they have a personal, family or financial interest. A key issue in the legal battle is the language of a provision in the state's 1970 Constitution which allows voters to petition for constitutional change only in "structural and procedural subjects" of the state legislature.

The Constitution provides that all other changes must be initiated by the legislature itself. Assistant Illinois Atty. Gen. Herb Caplan, arguing on the side of the coalition, told the court that if it bans the amendments, the provision allowing voters to petition for change may as well "be repealed." Caplan was arguing against a ruling made two weeks ago by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen, who found all three amendments to be unconstitutional. Cohen's ruling invalidated petitions containing 675,000 signatures, nearly double the number needed for placing an amendment on the ballot.

Samuel Witwer, who presided over the 1970 Constitutional Convention and is representing the forces opposed to the amendments, told the court if it approved the amendments it would be permitting "the wrongful expenditure of $1.7 million in putting patently unconstitutional proposals before the voters." Calling the issue a "landmark case," Witwer said that if the ballots were approved the state would face the possibility of a "biannual revision of the fundamentals of government. Every two years, it would be 'anything goes,' he said. He cited transcripts of debates at the Constitutional Convention to show that the intent of the convention was to permit voters to petition for amendments only on the "organization and makeup of the legislature."

Driver cited in CTA crash

The probable cause of the crash of two Chicago Transit Authority trains last Jan. 9 was the failure of the motorman of the moving train to see in time another train standing on the track ahead of him, said a report released Monday. The National Transportation Safety Board report also said failure of the motorman of the moving train to observe a 25-mile-per-hour speed limit was a contributing factor in the wreck in which one person was killed and 380 were injured. The 33-page report by the NTSB also cited as contributing causes:

- A CTA rule which permitted the operation of trains with inoperable automatic train and cab signals.
- The lack of enforcement of other rules.
- The failure of the train phone system to provide reliable communication.
- The absence of a flagman behind the stopped train, which was stalled because of an equipment failure.

West suburbs criticize RTA area fare plan

Suburbanites Monday night said they were willing to accept proposed Regional Transportation Authority fare hikes, but objected strongly to parts of a proposed regional fare structure.

Proposed elimination of monthly and 20-ride tickets drew the most criticism at a public hearing in Glen Ellyn. Officials of several villages that operate commuter feeder services said elimination of such discount tickets would make their systems unworkable.

"The convenience of prepaid tickets to the rider cannot be over-emphasized," said a Naperville official. He said this ticketing system encourages a ridership habit and eliminates the need for money handling.

OFFICIALS FROM Glen Ellyn and Glendale Heights also objected to elimination of prepaid tickets. Joseph DiJohn, executive director of the North Suburban Mass Transit District, said he, too, would like to continue use of 10-ride tickets at a 5 percent discount.

The RTA had planned to eliminate such tickets to ease the rider's ability to transfer from one transit system to another with the new universal transfer. Board members had argued that it would be difficult to establish a regional system unless all carriers operated from the fare box.

Most persons speaking at the hearing said they were not upset by proposed fare hikes that would increase the cost of most one-way bus and Chicago Transit Authority trips from 45 to 50 cents.

Residents of Western Springs and Downers Grove said they objected to the zone fare system proposed for the commuter railroads. They said this would make the fare hikes inequitable because some riders would experience fare hikes while others would actually get fare decreases. This would not affect the Chicago and North Western Ry. until it completes negotiations with the RTA.

The CTA objected to the proposed fare increases at a public hearing Monday morning in Chicago, saying the hikes could cause between 15,000

Fast rule asked in RTA lawsuit

by LYNN ASINOF

Regional Transportation Authority attorneys Monday asked the Illinois Supreme Court to issue a speedy ruling on the validity of the 1976-77 RTA budget.

"If the court could possibly announce an early decision it would be helpful to a lot of people," attorney Don Reuben said, concluding his oral argument before the court.

The court, however, decided not to issue an oral ruling in the case. It adjourned to Springfield late Monday and a written opinion will be issued from there.

The ruling is needed because the RTA failed to adopt its budget before June 30, the legal deadline.

A lawsuit filed by Chicago attorney Richard M. Kates charges that the court should rule the budget illegal. He told the court such a decision would establish rules and procedures that would prevent a recurrence of the RTA budget crisis.

Suburban RTA directors blocked passage of the budget in an attempt to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. The budget was later approved as part of a compromise agreement.

RTA attorneys argued that the state legislature did not intend the budget deadline to be "holier than holy." Reuben said strict adherence to the deadline would force the RTA to shut down for a year.

"That's really burning down a skyscraper to cook a pig," Reuben said.

and 18,000 persons to stop riding the CTA.

The RTA plans to act on the proposed fare changes Sept. 1. The fare hikes are to take effect Sept. 5, with the regional fare system's universal transfer effective in early October.

Flood project useless without funds: Howlett

A vote last month by the Illinois House of Representatives against increased state bonding power will impair the Busse Woods reservoir project and risk local flooding next spring, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett charged Monday.

Howlett, who took part in a tour Monday of the Busse Woods project in Elk Grove Township, said money allocated by the state for the reservoir will allow for the project's completion, but he charged the failure to provide additional funding for channel work along Salt Creek will make the reservoir useless.

Spokesmen for the Illinois Dept. of Waterways handling the project were unavailable for comment Monday.

HOWLETT CALLED for a reversal of the House vote, which he said "stymied a $96 million bonding increase for the Illinois Capital Development Board." He said "It was needed for special projects for the mentally retarded, blind and deaf children as well as for flood control."

He said the measure, which was defeated by five votes, was "a defeat for thousands of homeowners of eastern DuPage and western Cook counties who need relief from the floods of Salt Creek and Addison Creek."

Howlett said some $350,000 intended for a channel widening the north branch of Salt Creek will not be funded because of the vote and added that without the channel, water cannot enter the reservoir.

"The entire area of Elmhurst, Villa Park, Oak Brook, Wood Dale and Elk Grove Village is threatened by the floods of spring," Howlett said.

The Busse Woods Reservoir is part of the $26 million Upper Salt Creek Watershed project being funded with state and federal monies. The project is designed to alleviate flooding in the area.

Rustic Wisconsin sights

Ideal place for wilderness lover

WINTER, Wis. — The Big Bear Lodge, located in the heart of the Flambeau River State Forest, is a convenient base of operation for the Wisconsin wilderness explorer.

The rustic resort on the bank of the river's North Fork is just across from the forestry headquarters on Hwy. W. It's 11 cabins, two, three and four bedrooms, range from $80 to $150 per week, featuring complete house-keeping units with indoor plumbing. Groceries and other provisions can be purchased in the local communities of Winter and Phillips, Wis.

For guests who would rather not make the long trek to the north woods by car, the proprietors of the lodge will arrange transportation from the airport or bus stop in Phillips.

Purchased in 1946 by the Ballagh family of Chicago, the Big Bear Lodge remains a family operation to this day run by the descendants of the original owners. This part of Wisconsin still attracts residents of the Chicago area, who number high on the guest list of the lodge.

THE LODGE actually was named for the Big Bear resort in California, although the name has its own meaning here in the Flambeau forest. The giant statue of a Black Bear outside the lodge and the ferocious-looking stuffed bear hovering over guests in the cocktail lounge have conjured up many a tall tale over a glass of local brew.

The bear has achieved the status of a legend here — one making the imaginative think twice about the sounds of the night. Occasionally the legend comes alive when a bear and cub are spotted rummaging through a garbage heap looking for a few spare scraps of food.

The bear hunting season opens here in September, followed by partridge hunting in October and deer in November. Rabbits are fair game all winter long.

Fishermen trade stories about the size of the day's catch and of course, there's always the story about the one that got away.

IN ADDITION to hunting and fishing, a popular outdoor sport at the Big Bear Lodge is canoeing. Canoes are furnished with each cabin, but they also can be rented at a daily rate.

Swimming in the lodge's private pond also is a favorite summer pastime. During the cold months from Dec. 1 to May 1, the cabins are closed, but the lodge itself is open, catering mainly to snowmobile enthusiasts.

After a day of outdoor activity, good food and elegant dining are a true luxury. The Big Bear's excellent restaurant is open for dinner six nights a week.

A typical evening starts with a cool drink in the lounge overlooking the river, followed by a full-course dinner featuring a lavish relish tray, soup, salad and main course. To top it off, there's a plateful of kolacky's, a pastry dessert reflecting the owners' Czechoslovakian heritage.

ROAST DUCKLING is a specialty of the house served with wild rice, dumplings, sauerkraut and potato. A half duckling portion is listed at $6.25, with a quarter portion at $5.

The menu also features hearty steaks, chicken, wiener schnitzel and walleye. Prices average around $6 and there's also a children's menu.

Reservations and information for the lodge are available by contacting: Ballagh's & Biermann's Big Bear Lodge, Inc., Winter, Wis. 54896, 715-332-5261.

Flambeau area was established as a state forest.

TODAY, THE 86,000-acre forest is one of the few undeveloped and non-commercialized areas left in the state — a panorama of northern hardwoods and hemlock plus sections of old growth timber spared from the lumberjack's axe. The shorelines of the placid lakes and banks of the rushing white water of the Flambeau are a natural habitat for a variety of shrubs and wildlife. Deer are often spotted crossing the winding gravel and asphalt roads.

The forest, located about 38 miles east of Hayward, Wis., is sparsely populated with only a few rural hamlets, summer cabins and two state managed campgrounds. The lack of civilization is troublesome only for a few hours before the urge to return to the simple life takes over. A vacation in the Flambeau River State Forest is a back-to-nature experience full of peace and relaxation.

Yet there are plenty of things to do for those who like to stay active. The river itself is said to be one of the best in the state for canoeing, presenting a challenge to both the novice and experienced canoeist.

The 12-mile stretch on the North Fork between Nile Mile Creek and Oxbow has only one stretch of fast water — Barnaby rapids — making it ideal for amateurs. The current picks up below Oxbow, traveling past cabins and wandering several miles through wilderness, before reaching Hwy. W at the forestry headquarters.

THE NEXT stretch to Camp 41 is perhaps the most scenic. The shoreline is heavily timbered. Four miles downstream is Big Block, a stand of old growth timber stretching for three miles.

Below Camp 41 the excitement begins with a series of swift rapids — Wannigan Rapids and Flambeau Falls. The North and South Forks of the river merge further downstream and after three miles, as the river widens and deepens, the roar of Cedar Rapids sounds a new alarm. The four pitches of the rapids are followed by Beaver Dam, an abrupt 4-foot drop extending across the river in nearly a straight line.

Fishing on the river, the lakes and nearby trout streams is a popular sport in the area. Walleye, bass, picker and various panfish are the most common but the Wisconsin muskel-lunge is a fisherman's dream. The muskie is a prize catch here. The largest caught in Wisconsin waters weighed in at a whopping 69 pounds 11 ounces.

Other recreational activities include hiking the self-guided nature trails located near the two 30-unit campgrounds on Connors Lake and Lake of the Pines, testing marksmanship skills at the shooting range, swimming, picnicking and hunting. Licenses are available nearby.

SNOWSHOEING, cross-country skiing and snowmobiling are popular winter sports. The forest has 53 miles of marked and maintained snowmobile trails.

Meals and lodging are available at a number of resorts in the area. An annual or daily use sticker is required in the two tent and trailer camps.

Information on the Flambeau River State Forest is available from the Wisconsin Dept. of Natural Resources, Box 450, Madison, Wis., 53701.

The way we see it

Korea incident grim reminder

Panmunjom and Korea are names out of a long nightmare that has faded into the back of the American consciousness.

It comes as a shock, therefore, to find American troops on alert and jets flying halfway around the world because of a sudden flare-up in tensions in that part of the world.

The most immediate solution to this disturbing resurgence of the Cold War is to alleviate the tensions in the area through a United Nations fact-finding mission to sort out the circumstances which led to the tragic killing of two American officers last week.

At the same time, the whole incident must serve as a chilling reminder that even as world leaders talk about detente, American and Korean troops are facing each other at bayonet-point across a cease-fire line established more than 20 years ago.

For all the progress that has been made in recent years on the situation in Korea, it is conceivable that 20 years from now soldiers who have not yet been born will be in the same position.

It is too much to expect quick or easy solutions to this uneasy peace. But if the current trouble along the Korean cease-fire line can raise the awareness of Americans and their leaders, it may be that a solution can eventually be found.

There can be no doubt that in the search for solutions, the American government will face major obstacles from both the North and South Korean governments whose attitudes have been hardened through years of conflict.

One thing is clear, however, as the latest episode in the Korean saga unfolds. This is not the time to revive the passions or the justifications which led to the Korean War.

Nuclear licensing good

The temporary halt in new nuclear reactor licensing announced by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission is good news for the public.

The agency was responding to a U.S. Court of Appeals ruling that the NRC did not give adequate attention to atomic risks in its licensing of nuclear power plants in Vermont and Michigan.

As a result, the agency said no licenses to build plants or operate new stations at full power will be issued until an environmental study is completed. The study of radioactive waste handling and reprocessing of spent fuel should be ready by Sept. 30.

As residents of the state with the highest concentration of atomic energy plants, Illinois citizens stand to benefit from the urgently needed research. By its decision, the appeals court prompted necessary research that previously was overlooked by regulators and some legislators.

B-1 bomber

It could be the most successful aircraft ever to be tested in air history

by DALE D. MYERS

There is regrettable irony in the fact the Air Force B-1 bomber is the focal point of a funding battle on Capitol Hill.

The Senate has recently decided to delay that decision until after Feb. 1, 1977. The delay was proposed so the newly elected president, whoever he may be, can further evaluate B-1 flight test data before deciding on a go-ahead.

There are two reasons a delay is unsound. First, after more than a year and a half of intensive flight testing at Edwards Air Force Base, California, plus years of ground tests, the B-1 already has demonstrated virtually all of its major design requirements. Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed recently pointed out that no new test information of significance to a production decision will become available between November and February.

The second reason is that a delay now will add millions of dollars to the program. The Air Force estimates that the additional cost could reach as high as $500 million.

It is ironic that the B-1 debate has created the image of a questionable product.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

If ever the United States — the acknowledged leader in the manufacture of fine military aircraft — has produced a superior airplane, the B-1 is it.

Each of the four Secretaries of Defense since 1970 has supported the program after careful evaluation of its need. As Secretary, James Schlesinger requested and defended the long lead procurement funds approved by Congress last year.

The B-1's performance in flight testing is so outstanding that former astronaut Maj. Gen. Thomas Stafford, commander of the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards, said:

"The B-1 system is the result of six years of active, innovative development preceded by seven years of intensive study. Never have we so thoroughly thought out and tested an aircraft prior to turning it over to the ultimate user. The true proof lies in the system's ability to adequately perform its mission in the air."

"The B-1 is the most successful of any test program the Flight Test Center has seen to date."

Being developed by the Air Force to modernize its strategic bomber force, the B-1 is designed to survive in today's environment of sophisticated radar defenses by penetrating the target at treetop altitudes at nearly supersonic speeds.

It's been said that there are other systems which can do the B-1's job more cheaply and effectively, but the record does not support this.

Department of Defense studies conclusively show that there is no feasible alternative to the B-1, as indicated in Congressional testimony by former Air Force Secretary John McLucas.

A B-52 with modified engines would have substantial deficiencies in takeoff and in low-level capabilities compared to the B-1, Dr. McLucas said.

He said it would require ten times as many enlarged — or stretched — FB-111's to do the job of B-1's. "A stretched version," Dr. McLucas said, "could not provide adequate target coverage because it would lack the necessary space for sufficient fuel or weapons."

The often proposed air-launched cruise missile is also judged an inadequate substitute.

Dr. McLucas said that wide-bodied transports carrying cruise missiles would be more vulnerable to attack than the B-1, both during takeoff (by submarine-launched ballistic missiles) and at altitude (by long-range interceptors).

The conclusion is that the B-1 is the most cost-effective way to insure that the bomber portion of the U.S. Triad concept of deterrent defense, which includes land-and sea-launched missiles, remains sound.

In terms of cost, the B-1 program has been victimized by distortion. Totally without foundation, figures as high as $91 billion, in today's dollars, have been cited for the B-1's life cycle cost.

In rebuttal, the Air Force points out that in terms of today's dollars, "the total life cycle cost of the B-1 fleet is $26.8 billion." This cost encompasses, in addition to research and development work and the manufacture of 240 operational aircraft, the cost of fuel, crews, weapons, maintenance, and ground support equipment and personnel over a 20 year period of full fleet operations.

The B-1 research and development program, itself, has been a model of efficiency. In six years since the contract was awarded by the Air Force, the cost estimate, in terms of 1970 dollars, has increased by only 11 per cent, despite the complexity of the program. A full 89 per cent of the total increase is due solely to inflation, according to the Air Force.

Secretary Reed recently said: "The B-1 is one of the best managed programs in the history of the Department of Defense, a remarkable achievement when you consider the complexity of the work."

A persistent question is asked about the B-1. "Is it necessary in the missile age?"

Gen. Russell E. Dougherty, commander of the Strategic Air Command, recently outlined 14 reasons why the answer is unequivocally yes. He points out that a bomber can be launched immediately in a crisis to provide high visibility of national resolve while providing precious time for peaceful negotiation. Most importantly, it can be recalled if peace prevails — a ballistic missile cannot.

In conclusion, Gen. Dougherty said:

"A long-range, manned penetrating bomber offers a uniquely capable and dependable strategic delivery system that spreads itself reliably and capably across the broadest possible spectrum of those required military capabilities. When completely modernized and manned with skilled, ingenious military crews, such a penetrating bomber offers the United States an overall flexibility of choice and application that is unmatched by any other weapons system."

"Simply stated, I view the B-1 as the best candidate vehicle reasonably available to satisfy the future requirement for a modern manned penetrating bomber — and to provide the U.S. with the diversified characteristics that are and will be needed in our complementary mix of strategic delivery systems. Not only do I view it as the best, I do not see any other comparable system that can reasonably be expected to do this job as I think it must be done for assurance — or for long-term economics."

Mayor Teichert instructed in 'How to be a good parent'

While reading Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert's comments in the Aug. 16 Herald concerning vandalism, especially his question "Who among us will write the rules for 'How to be a good parent?'" I wondered at the fact that he hasn't realized that someone with love, compassion, discipline, justice and patience has already written those rules. They are available to anyone who wants to avail themselves of them. The author is God himself and the rule book is the Bible. He leaves no doubt in your mind or heart as to parental responsibilities, but He also clearly states the child's responsibilities. Who teaches these responsibilities to the children?

It is not a hidden fact that psychologists and psychiatrists say children are a mirror of their parents. If you want to know about a family's home life, just observe the children. I firmly believe it is time for all of us parents to assume our God given responsibilities to ourselves and our children and start setting examples and living by the rules of God and I'll bet our children will start to imitate these positive aspects.

The old saying "Do as I say, not as I do" has to die in order for our children to have respect for us. Who do our children look to for guidance if we their parents cannot provide it? Every adult in this society has a responsibility to the children of this society. Every adult can affect a child's life by the way he conducts his own life.

It is time to stop passing the blame and start looking at only ourselves and be honest about our actions. Have we done everything we could? Have we truly given of ourselves? Have we said, "Help with Cub Scouts? Are you kidding? I'm too busy." "Take you fishing? Not now, I have a business meeting to attend." "Play catch? I'm sorry but I'm playing tennis." "Here's five dollars, go find someone to go to the movies." "Join the PTC? Oh, I couldn't do that, I have no talents." "Run for the school board? I don't understand anything about running schools, and what a thankless job." "Help work the lunch program? I can't stand those brats. Let someone else do it."

Aren't we all too willing to let someone else do it, and then when they fail we are so quick to blame them. Who's responsibility is it to teach our children respect, law, order, values and standards, the scoutmaster, the teacher, the church? No, it is ours, like it or not we cannot change that fact.

In Rudolf Driekurs' book "The Challenge of Parenthood" he rules out using the word "good" parents because if you are not "good" then you must be "bad." He chooses the words effective and ineffective. I think these words give a much clearer understanding of what our actions do to our children.

We may turn our backs to our responsibilities now, but someday we will have to face our Maker and given an accounting of our actions. How do you want to answer His questions? Did you run from your responsibilities or did you really avail yourself of His rules and guidelines?

Anyone can become an effective adult if he wants to. All one needs to do is honestly admit your mistakes and ask God to take over your life and make you into the adult necessary to be an example to others. Try it, what have you got to lose? Just our children and our society if you don't.

Cost of running cars, trucks rises

The cost of keeping the nation's cars and trucks on the road has jumped by more than $100 billion a year since 1972, but the culprit may not be the one that readily comes to mind — gasoline. A Hertz Corp. study released this week concludes that depreciation, the difference between the price you pay for a vehicle and its trade-in value, is the main reason for the increase — a greater rise than in all of the previous 22 years. Not only has the cost gone up, but the record rises now mean Americans last year spent nearly a quarter of the country's personal income to run motor vehicles, compared with less than one-fifth of it 25 years ago, the Hertz study said. Part of that increase, however, is due to the fact that Americans are running more vehicles today than 25 years ago.

U.S. pension prober resigns

The administrator of federal pension law enforcement, including an investigation of Teamsters union pension funds, resigned Monday in a memo suggesting his job had been impeded by the slow workings of the U.S. Labor Dept. James D. Hutchinson, 32, announced he will resign, effective Oct. 1, because of "both professional and personal considerations." A spokesman insisted the resignation had nothing to do with the Teamsters inquiry, which will not be interrupted.

Cake mix firm to correct labels

Consumers may not be able to judge a book by its cover, but New York Atty. Gen. Louis Lefkowitz says they should be able to judge a cake mix by its box. Lefkowitz said Sunday that General Foods Corp., headquartered in White Plains, N.Y., has agreed to put labels on boxes of cake mix that picture a frosted cake on the cover but do not include frosting. The Attorney General said the company has agreed to stop picturing frosted cakes on boxes of Swans Down cake mix, which do not include frosting.

ICC, citizens' groups to meet

The Illinois Public Action Council announced that representatives of several area citizens' groups will meet Wednesday with Illinois Commerce Commission chairman Marvin Lieberman to discuss utility rate changes and the commission's ban on radio and television coverage of public hearings. The Arlington Heights Homeowners and the Mount Prospect Savers are among the groups which will be represented at the 1 p.m. meeting in the Loop YWCA, 37 S. Wabash, Chicago. The ICC's "promotional rate structure" allows energy utilities to charge average citizens higher rates than big users such as industrial plants, said Margaret Person of Metropolitan Seniors in Action. Pat Carbery of the Arlington Heights Homeowners' group said the groups will urge Lieberman to open hearings for all media.

Galaxy Carpet sales increase

Galaxy Carpet Mills Inc. of Elk Grove Village reported fiscal 1976 sales and earnings increases for the 39 weeks ended June 26. Irwin Harvey, president, said he expects the trend to continue. For the 39 weeks ending June 26, net sales totaled $47,073,000 compared to $38,905,000 a year earlier. Net income amounted to $674,000 or 36 cents a share compared to the previous $399,000 or 21 cents a share.

Diesel passenger cars seen

Small diesel engines will play an increasing role in passenger cars through 1990, predicts Peter Hofbauer of Volkswagenwerk in West Germany. At a recent Traverse City, Mich., meeting, Hofbauer said the lightweight diesel engine being developed by his company offers fuel economy for passenger cars. He is optimistic on the development of added liquid synthetic fuels for automobiles. "Liquid fuels such as gasoline or methanol (wood alcohol) are far superior to all other energy storage systems including gaseous or solid fuels, flywheels and batteries," he said.

State transit unit 'indifferent'

Union slams bus service halt

by LEA TONKIN

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation's plan to halt free bus service for employees who commute to its offices in Schaumburg is drawing fire from labor union representatives.

The cutback could cost the department federal funds if minority employment programs suffer, said Richard Wilson, state coordinator for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME).

A department spokesman in Schaumburg said alternative transportation arrangements have been made for all except 10 of the local employees.

"The Dept. of Transportation spends millions of dollars each year on private transportation, but it is apparently indifferent to its own employees' transportation needs," Wilson said.

IN A LETTER sent to federal highway administrator Norbert Tiemann, Wilson said more than 150 department employees — many of them women and minorities — need carpool and bus service to commute from Chicago to Schaumburg.

The union urged Tiemann to order the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to order continued bus service and "to make a determination as to whether Illinois, in its failure to meet affirmative action goals, has forfeited its right to obtain Federal Highway Act funds."

David Kusnet, an AFSCME spokesman in Springfield, said the union attempted to meet with Illinois Sec. of Transportation Langhorne Bond in June. "He refused to meet with us," Kusnet said. Alternative transportation, for which employees pay a daily fee, is unacceptable to the union, he said.

Kusnet said the union may decide within a week whether to take further action on Dept. of Transportation employee commuter problems.

APPROXIMATELY 10 employees who live in the Elgin area are the only Schaumburg workers who will have transportation problems when bus service is discontinued Sept. 30, said Dan Newman, business services manager for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation's Schaumburg office. A $1.63-per-day charge for round-trip bus service will be levied for Skokie and Chicago commuters, Newman said. Car pool arrangements have been made for some Elgin employees.

"If people from Elgin were interested, the cost for bus service would have been about $2.20 a day, but there was not enough interest," Newman said.

Newman said 135 employees initially used the free bus service it started in April 1975. Ridership later dropped to approximately 85 employees. Clerks, engineer-technicians and some management staff use the service which was extended from the July 30 cutoff date to Sept. 30.

Bus service was launched after DOT closed offices in Elgin and Chicago and relocated offices at 1000 Plaza Dr., Schaumburg. The move came under fire in March following an Illinois legislative subcommittee report. The report said the $9.94-per-square-foot rental fee, the cost of moving employees and bus transportation was too high.

U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner reportedly subpoenaed records in connection with the move to Schaumburg. Newman said the U.S. Atty.'s office checked some department records, but he reported no recent communication with Skinner's office.

Stocks down for fourth day in row

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite late blue-chip buying, prices fell Monday for the fourth consecutive session in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange amid rising tensions over killings in Korea and the economic slowdown.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than eight points at the outset, lost 2.58 points to 971.49. The drop brought its four-day loss total to 27.85 points and put it at the lowest level since it closed at 964.39 on June 10.

Heavy early selling at the outset followed reports U.S. ships had left Japan for Korean waters after the State Department had rejected a North Korean statement calling last Wednesday's slaying of two American officers at Panmunjom "regrettable."

During the afternoon, White House Press Secy. Ron Nessen said President Ford wanted to relax tension over the incident, "but we want to make sure there is no miscalculation regarding our firmness in the area."

North Korean officials called Ford the "boss of war."

The market's setback was broader than deep. The NYSE common stock index lost 0.23 to 54.48 and the average price of a common share decreased by 13 cents. Declines routed advances, 951 to 419, among the 1,339 issues crossing the tape.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

Thoughts on a Mattress

For over three years our little mattress factory has been doing an ever increasing business by attracting the astute, inquisitive customer with the intelligence and experience to recognize the difference between some so-called "discount" price delusion and a top quality product at a low price.

And we would like to clarify one point - this a factory: not a "Factory Outlet" or "Factory Closeout Mart" or some other misrepresentation of just another retail store - we actually make our mattresses and box springs right here before your very eyes.

Once in awhile we do get a customer who says, "That's not cheap. I can buy one cheaper at so-and-so's."

The funny thing is that nine out of ten of these customers, after shopping all the "cheap" mattresses in the area, come back and buy ours.

So it gives us a lot of satisfaction to know that there is still a place in this economy of ours for a small company that wants to produce a quality piece of merchandise. And that wants to let our customers know we appreciate the fact we try to let our customers know we appreciate the fact that they come in to see us. It is really surprising how many have taken their time to call and even write to thank us just because our delivery men were so courteous and helpful when we delivered our merchandise.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Heart deterioration may cause swelling

My father is 88 years old. He lives in Wisconsin with my 86-year-old mother. He has been healthy and happy and able to do all his chores until the last two or three months. He walked to the barn a couple of times a day, about four blocks to the mail box every day and even cleared the sidewalk of snow.

His ankles and feet have been swelling. His doctor says it's his heart and gave him pills for his heart and for the swelling. I don't think he has high blood pressure. He has also taken water pills before.

He doesn't eat much salt. The pills don't help the swelling and he feels weak. My brother said he didn't go to church last Sunday. I haven't been able to find out exactly what kind of pills he takes, since I live in Utah.

My dad is 140 to 145 pounds and 5 feet 5. I wonder if you could give some suggestions as to what you think might be causing his legs to swell and if there is anything that might help him at his age.

The doctor told my brother that changing my dad's diet wouldn't help now. Dad could eat anything. Last Thanksgiving when I was in Wisconsin he was so spry, did all the chores, fed two steers in the barn, went to church, visited my brothers' homes and went out to dinner with us. He felt good and enjoyed all of it.

It is hard to produce miracles and yet all of us hope for them or hope some doctor will provide one.

Your father has done remarkably well and seems to have enjoyed all of his 88 years. I presume that he has swelling of the feet and ankles from heart failure. Many things can cause it but since your doctor has been giving him heart pills that is the most likely problem at his age.

Heart failure is not the same thing as a heart attack. It is caused by a weakening of the heart muscle that can occur from many different causes. Commonly the arteries to the heart muscle become diseased and gradually the heart muscle is damaged, rather than the sudden change you see with an acute heart attack. Inflammation of the heart muscle or overwork from valvular disease can cause it, too, but I would expect it to be related to your father's arteries at his age.

There is a limited amount that can be done. Medicines to eliminate salt and water are helpful. The use of heart medicines (the digitalis group) to strengthen the heart muscle sometimes work like a miracle earlier in the course of the illness. Eventually the patient has to strictly limit physical activity.

The one area that can often be improved is in limiting salt intake. I note you say your father doesn't use much salt. In such problems any salt is too much. Moreover, it is better to limit the foods that contain lots of salt (sodium). That means limiting the meat group and particularly avoiding cured meats and cold cuts. Milk has to be limited or you must find low salt milk products. Strict adherence to a low salt diet may be helpful but it isn't much fun.

Those who want information on the aging process can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Send your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Remedies recommended for crayon wax stains

Dear Dorothy: In a hurry recently, I failed to check my son's pockets properly. There were several crayons in them and all the clothes went into the dryer. Now, crayon is melted into several garments. Would you know what to do to get it out? — Mrs. W. Skinder

If the crayon stains were set by the dryer (and especially if one was red) you may have trouble getting them out. However, you might as well go the whole route. Remove as much of the wax as you can with the dull edge of a knife. Then put paper towels on both sides of stain and press with a barely warm iron. Place the stained part face down on paper towels and put dry-cleaning solvent on the back side of the stain. Then dampen with water, rub with bar soap or liquid detergent, rinse and launder. If there's still a trace of color, soak in an enzyme pre-soak or oxygen bleach solution and launder again. When a whole load of clothes is stained, a simple recommended method is to launder with hot water, laundry soap and one cup baking soda. If spots remain, dry cleaning is the necessary next step.

Dear Dorothy: My sister buys carrots and beets out in the country. She stores them in the refrigerator with tops on. Seems to me I read somewhere that the tops should be snipped off or they absorb the nutrients. Am I right or wrong? — Hilda Herbert Right. And for the precise reason you cite.

Dear Dorothy: This may help others who have small troubles with porch furniture. Our willow couch was starting to show dirt and I did some inquiring. A furniture man urged trying the popular white detergent used on appliances. I tried it — and polished it, and the end result is lovely. — Randall Stoddard

Working mothers

Those with preschoolers have extra problems

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

(Second of four parts)

One working mother told the story of her 4-year-old daughter coming home from full-time nursery school, bubbling over about the squares and rectangles on her mother's dress.

"She was happier and learning more at school than I could ever give her at home," the mother said with a smile.

Another young woman, exhausted at 8 p.m. and speaking quietly over her coffee to avoid waking her young sons, said she thought her full-time employment was a "definite factor" in her child's behavior problems at school.

Whether preschool working mothers relish or dread their employment, their numbers are increasing. According to a 1976 report from the National Commission on the Observance of Women's Year, more than five million working mothers have children under six years of age. In families headed by women, there were 71 per cent more preschoolers with working mothers in 1975 than in 1970, the report adds.

THE RUNNING BATTLE between those who believe a child needs the constant care of his mother the first few years and those who think the care and attention can be provided by other individuals seems far from over.

Research into the effects of a working mother on a preschooler's development has been limited, and results are inconclusive and conflicting. As psychologist Lois Hoffman and sociologist Ivan Nye point out in their 1974 book, "Working Mothers":

"While there is no evidence that employment affects the quantity or quality of the mother-infant interaction, the voluntary employment of mothers of infants and young children has not been common and has rarely been studied."

Local experts in child development view day care centers and maternal employment differently. Mike Ostrowski, family counselor and psychology professor at Harper College,

"I'M A BETTER mother because I'm doing what I want to do," says part-time music teacher Kathy Lecinski of Buffalo Grove. With sons, David, 5, Patrick, 15 months, and Daniel, 4, Mrs. Lecinski teaches because "working is a need I have that goes beyond the extra income," she says.

has "serious doubts" about full-time employment for preschool mothers. He urges prospective parents to "wake up to the fact that parenting is a full-time proposition — especially in the first few years."

DR. DENNIS LAMBERT, psychiatrist and director of clinical services for children at Forest Hospital, Des Plaines, says a child below three years of age needs a protective, maternal, giving type of person on a one-to-one basis. He would prefer something be worked out with a relative or live-in babysitter.

But Barbara Wickell, professor and family consultant at the University of Chicago-Circle Campus and herself a working mother, says she's found that working mothers spend as much, if not more, one-on-one time with their children as non-working mothers. She feels it's the quality of time that counts, and adds that if the mother manages to erase her guilt about leaving the home, the children will benefit from the experience.

PANGS OF GUILT, often present when any mother starts a full-time job, are frequently intensified when preschool children are involved. Many mothers still view day care centers as strictly custodial care facilities, where the child is plopped in front of a TV set and left to his own amusements. Despite these fallacies, "there's still a tremendous amount of guilt . . . I don't think it's justifiable, but it's nearly always the first thing we have to deal with," says Karen Selman, director of Palatine's Community Child Care Center.

Adds Lorraine Angel, operator of both Angel Town day care center and Angel Town-Baby Town infant care center in Des Plaines, "Many of our parents have a heavy guilt complex before they enter their children, but we try to show them that in many ways, it's an advantage to have a child in a responsible day care center."

A UNIQUE FEATURE of Mrs. Angel's program is the infant care facility, which cares for children from birth to two years with a ratio of one adult to every three babies. The center, patterned after a Harvard University preschool project, is licensed for 20 children, and Mrs. Angel says it is filled each year.

Parents of the infants are split between those working out of financial necessity and those opting for a career by choice, but in both the infant care and day care centers, parents experience those guilt feelings.

"I spend so much time feeling guilty about working that it only makes things worse," admits Barbara Michal, a working mother with two sons in the Community Child Care Center. Mrs. Michal, recently remarried, has worked out of financial necessity since her 3-year-old was nine months old. She enjoys her job as an executive secretary and feels "perfectly confident" about the care her sons receive at the Palatine center, but the after-hours time demands are too much for her.

"I'D BE HOME in a minute if I had the chance," she says with a sigh. "It tears my heart out to go to work because there are so many demands that I can't set aside a specific time for the kids. They're just not getting all they should be."

Mrs. Michal's schedule of a quick breakfast at 6:30 a.m., full day at work, dinner and children's bedtime by 8 p.m. "doesn't give much time for plain old mothering," but she says her family is gradually adjusting as her husband pitches in with housework and she learns to relax.

Despite the problems, Mrs. Michal says the idea of setting up a business with her husband when the children are in school is "pretty exciting." And she admits that "I have gotten used to the excitement of working . . . maybe I'd be a caged lion if I were home all day."

FEAR OF BECOMING a "caged lion" is part of the reason Kathy Lecinski, a Buffalo Grove music teacher and mother of three preschoolers, works part time. Mrs. Lecinski combines private piano lessons, teaching duties and music work at her church with three active boys because "I'd be horrible if I was home all the time — working part time makes me a better mother because I'm doing what I want to do."

"I didn't work at all after the birth of my first child, but it really bothered me," Mrs. Lecinski says. "An education gives you an obligation to yourself, and it would have been a shame to let it go down the drain — working is a need I have that goes beyond the extra income."

DESPITE THE fact that "it would be like cutting off an arm" to give up music, Mrs. Lecinski does limit her professional activities to approximately two days a week.

"I just couldn't walk out every day . . . maybe when the kids are older I would go back full time, but I'd have to have the same hours the children do," she says.

Whatever their reasons for working, mothers of preschool children face several problems when they head out the door. The juggling act between work, home and family, a lack of quality child care facilities and the absence of definitive studies on how maternal employment affects children all add up — and they've influenced many preschool mothers to wait a few years before they punch that time card.

Dressiness returns to college wardrobe

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Back when going away to school meant taking along a trunkful of mohair sweaters, pleated skirts, and shiny black pumps, a college wardrobe was almost as important as making it through the first week without being labeled a freshman.

Then, during the years of leather sandals and long hair, faded blue jeans became "de rigueur" for everything from math class to a movie. But for fall, 1976, the trend seems to be swinging back to elegance for college freshmen as three-piece wool suits step in beside tattered denims — on dates, at least.

"Kids are buying much nicer clothes these days than they have in past years," says the junior department manager at Carson Pirie, Scott at Randhurst. "I think we're getting back to the days when they'll buy an entire wardrobe and only two or three pairs of jeans. People are sick of looking like bums."

Adds Martha Ferris at Lord and Taylor, Woodfield, "Most of today's college freshmen have been in blue jeans for most of their lives — when they think about college they want something different. There's been a strong trend toward dressy pants and skirts."

"GIRLS AREN'T as afraid to be different now," Ms. Ferris says. "A few years ago we couldn't sell anything but jeans and a shirt to that age group, but they're becoming a lot more conscious of clothes."

Take the word of an Indiana University student, who went through it herself last year. Donna Neukuckatz, last year's Paddock Junior Miss, says there's a definite move away from grubby blue jeans on campus. She notes that casual dorm parties still attract a majority of denims, but the jeans are being teamed up with dressy shirts and tops, a departure from the T-shirt craze a few years back.

"Anything goes these days," Ms. Neukuckatz says. "Dressy pants and jeans skirts are the most popular for dates, but there's not the social pressure to conform that there was in high school."

College students are sprucing up at the University of Illinois, too, says Penny Fukuya, another former Junior Miss and a sociology major at Champaign. High-waisted pants, separates and casual cotton skirts worn with sandals are the order of the day for Champaign coeds, and dresses are staging a comeback at local discos and night clubs, Ms. Fukuya adds.

WHILE JEANS and jean skirts are still the norm for classes, even denims are high-waisted and a little more dressy than the Levis of yesteryear.

"We'll never stop selling jeans, but you're going to see a lot more variety," says Kathy Prucha at J.C. Penney's in Woodfield. "Accessories are really selling, too — girls just seem to be spending more time and effort in picking out clothes."

So whether it's a disenchantment with the unisex craze or just an easier time of getting Dad's Master Charge, college coeds are dressing up . . . and as this year's crop of frosh head off to Sociology I and cafeteria carrots, they'll be taking a little class with them.

PANTS STILL are tops for class wear, according to University of Illinois coed Penny Fukuya of Des Plaines, but they're spruced up. And dresses are making a campus comeback for parties and nightclubs, says the former Paddock Junior Miss.

They make shoes fit for a queen

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

You are at an important affair. There is one particular trend follower present, perhaps a size three, who stares coldly from her de la Renta eyeglasses and Halston asymmetrical neckline. Her estimate of you is clear on a scale of one to ten, you don't register.

It takes some contriving, but you manage to slip your foot out of your shoe so that she can get a good look inside.

"By appointment to H.M. The Queen, Shoemakers, H & M. Rayne & Co., Ltd.," that's what it says, right there in your shoe, in gold letters. A clean and swift victory.

Rayne shoes aren't widely available here yet. Edward Rayne, chairman of the London firm, explained on a recent visit to New York that the company just bought the I. Miller shoe chain.

"So we have about 55 outlets in the States, including our departments in Delman Shoe salons, and you will be increasingly able to buy Rayne shoes in our outlets."

In 1961, Rayne became president of Delman Shoe Salons in America, the most prestigious of which just may be in Bergdorf Goodman's on Fifth Avenue in New York.

Now, to tell the truth, despite the prestige, you may not care to spend $60 or $70 for a pair of Rayne shoes because, judging from the rack in Bergdorf's, they're rather on the staid side. Dull, one might say. The sandals are decorous, the short-vamped ghillies respectable, the pumps understated. Oh, nicely crafted, mind you

PEEKED VAMP IN white patent with a touch of gold and the open-sided court shoe on a medium heel were in Queen Elizabeth's shoe wardrobe on her recent visit to the U.S. and Canada. Both pairs are by H. & M. Rayne, Ltd., London, who now own I. Miller. Their designs will be more widely available in the U.S. soon.

— but then they should be for the price, shouldn't they?

"You pay for the design basically," Rayne says. "The intrinsic value of the materials that go into the shoes doesn't justify the difference in price between a $20 pair and one for $60. But we've entered an era of consumerism and I think one accepts that the fit and quality should be taken for granted."

WHAT ABOUT the Queen, then, who wore Rayne shoes during her visit here? What size does she wear? Is she prompt with her bills? And what about Princess Anne and Princess Margaret and the Queen Mother, for whom Rayne also supplies shoes?

Rayne, a portly and rather harried gentleman with thick eyeglasses, is reluctant to reply. Polite but reluctant.

"One, you see, is not supposed to commercialize on a royal warrant. The Queen has been on the throne for 24 years and she gave us a royal warrant after three years." The most he will say is that "her shoes are medium heel and quite soft and comfortable. You can see from the sketches."

Ah, yes. Functional shoes for standing in receiving lines and reviewing troops. Shoes suitable, too, for scrutiny by the public.

H. & M. RAYNE & CO., LTD., is well attuned to that. It was founded in 1889 by Rayne's grandparents as a theatrical shoe business. "Now," he says, "with the theater and films, we've got a kitchen sink syndrome and the excuse for people to wear pretty shoes is rather less than was the case 30 or 40 years ago." which explains the company's entrance into the fashion field. Still Rayne's clients include Katharine Hepburn, who "like fairly conservative shoes, generally low heels because she's rather tall." And Rosalind Russell, "who rather likes elegant, more feminine shoes."

Since Europe is the center of the marketplace for fashion shoes, he says, "There's very little difference between shoes we sell here and in England. American ladies are slightly taller and you get lots of them with slim angular feet. More than we see in Europe where the feet tend to be shorter and fatter."

Boxlike and tapered, those feet will be parading in boots this fall. "There's a tremendous emphasis on boots of all heights and a lot of interest in the elegant, tailored shoes, particularly tie shoes that go with tweed and country looks. And a lot of interest in wine shades."

Well, now, does the Queen wear wine shades? Does one just stick a shoe on her foot or wait for her to say something like, "You may proceed with the royal right foot?" We wanted to ask, but we didn't. After all, we have settled one major dispute rather nicely with the mother country, haven't we, ducks?

(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

High price needn't mean garment of best quality

The highest price may not mean the best quality in fashion according to Marjorie Sohn, University of Illinois Extension clothing specialist.

Construction and fabric quality are only two factors in determining price. In relating price to quality, Ms. Sohn suggests considering the following factors:

- A garment could be in the high-price range because the fabric is expensive. High-quality natural fibers are more expensive than some synthetics or blends. To cut the cost of garments made from high quality or high-fashion fabrics, the manufacturer may cut corners on the amount of fabric used, the construction or the finishing details.

The exclusiveness of the design will affect the price. Obviously, if thousands of the same design are produced, the garments will cost less than if only a dozen are manufactured.

- Price is affected by design. The number and shape of pieces in the design can increase the price.

- The type of construction, supporting fabrics, and trims used affect price. For instance buttons can add considerably to the cost — four buttons priced at $3 each will add $12 to the cost of the garment.

Ms. Sohn points out that the concept of what is high-quality or low-quality may vary. What is low-quality to you may be high-quality to someone else. Likewise, concepts of expensive and inexpensive within styles and fabrics vary among individuals.

Technological changes also alter the current concept of quality. Through the years, manufacturers in the textile and clothing industry have learned to recognize what sells. They know from their buying patterns that quality control of merchandise is as important to you as the price you pay, Ms. Sohn concludes. Therefore many fiber producers, fabric manufacturers, and large retail companies maintain their own testing and research laboratories for quality control.

Easy care preferred in girls' wear

by JEANNE LESEM

The natural look is all very well for young people and adults as fall's new fashion trend, but it is not expected to be strong in school dressing for one very good reason.

The mother who buys a schoolgirl's dress also has to take care of it. She may even have to wash it after each wearing, say manufacturers and retailers, so she looks for garments that can go from washer to dryer to the wearer's back without a stop for ironing.

What this means is lots of polyester and blends of cotton or wool with synthetics that require little or no pressing after washing or dry cleaning.

"There is some reflection of women's naturals," said Terry Reynolds, fashion director for children's wear for a nationwide retail and catalog sales chain. "Cottons for children are always important. For one thing, colors come up much brighter. But there's no great surge in cotton because parents want easy care fabrics."

THEY'RE ALSO budget conscious, and cotton fabric now often costs more than synthetics, reversing a longstanding trend.

"Styles reflect junior styles," Miss Reynolds said. She defined juniors as girls from their late teens into their 20s.

As in women's fashions, the ladylike look is important this fall.

Dresses for the school set never really went out of style, said Stanley Love, president of a children's wear firm.

"Little girls always have worn dresses. Middle America is based on the family, and the family is children," said Love. "Mothers want their little girls to look like little girls. It is very important to have an identity today."

The big change Love sees is in colors, an acceptance of camel, beige and brown that never would have been used years ago for young children. Tartans, grays, plums and tweeds also are popular.

DESIGNS ARE mostly small scale versions of young adult and adult fashions: T-shirts, T-type bodices, lots of patchwork and appliques, big turtlenecks and mock turtlenecks, hooded jackets and coats, cuffed pants, jumpsuits and a return to classicism: white dresses for first communion, pleated skirts and jacket dresses.

Yet ethnic trends have accelerated, too. Love expects spring trends to include the Russian ballet look, North, South and Central American Indian motifs, the middle Europe gypsy look, country French and earthy African.

"Pants still make up the major portion of any child's wardrobe," said Miss Reynolds. "Jeans are always there. What is done with jeans makes them different. The bulk of the market is classic designs, the faded or the Western look. But there also are casual pants in faded denims, dark work clothes denims, engineer stripes." Bermudas, culottes, gauchos and jumpsuits, even knickers will be seen in school this fall. And long pants that tie at the ankle. The gauchos and culottes tend to be boot height. The tunic look so popular for adults is used for shirts or jumpers.

TO CARRY out the ladylike theme, models we saw wore mostly Mary Jane slippers, but some were in clunky looking natural leather T-straps with platforms that added an inch or more height.

Easy care carries over even to outerwear. Many bulky looking coats this fall have real lamb trim that is removable. Others are made from or trimmed with washable pile.

Ask Andy

Abalone makes mother-of-pearl

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Kim Robertson, 9, of Richmond, Va., for her question: DO ABALONE AND MOTHER-OF-PEARL COME FROM THE SAME SOURCE?

Yes, abalone and mother-of-pearl do come from the same source, which is a sea snail called the abalone. His assorted kinfolk range in size from one inch across to as large as 12 inches. These animals enjoy a rather lazy existence in the warm waters of the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

The abalone also is called the sea ear or the ear shell, no doubt because his humped oval shell resembles a human ear. His sturdy, thick shell is usually encrusted with algae and other sandy marine debris which hide his real beauty. Along one side of his shell, or across the top, depending on the species, there is a row of bumpy beads that are topped with small holes. Most of these mini volcanoes serve as breathing aids, and others help to remove waste materials from the body cavity.

Marine biologists classify the abalone as a mollusk, which makes him a cousin to the common garden snail.

He belongs to the sea, however, and, unlike the land snails, he has gills for extracting oxygen from the water. His tough body contains no bones and consists mainly of a large foot. He crawls from place to place using his muscular foot, weaving from side to side. When alarmed, he uses the entire foot as a suction cup to anchor himself.

The abalone usually dwells on the sandy bottom of his watery home, spending his time hiding among the shady rocks. He has a rough, file-like tongue called a radula which he uses to scrape algae off the rocks. The outside of his shell is rough and inconspicuous. But the inside is lined with a satiny smooth material called nacre or mother-of-pearl.

Mother-of-pearl is produced by the abalone and also by dozens of other shellfish, including oysters and clams. It is created by a fleshy flap called the mantle, which wraps around the creature's body like a cloak. In the mantle are special glands. These glands rearrange the simple ingredients extracted from the water and mix them with a special sort of cement.

Wherever the mantle touches the shell it spreads a thinner-than-thin layer on the inside of the shell. As the shell grows, the layers of mother-of-pearl become thicker and thicker. Each species of shellfish has his own recipe and the colors may range from peacock blues and greens to pale pinks and pearly grays. Its unique beauty enhances such items as pocketknife handles, bright buttons and jewelry.

Various abalones live in the coastal waters of many countries. The meat of the muscular foot is a delicious seafood treat when it is properly prepared. In the Far East the abalone is a staple food and is considered a symbol of prosperity and long life.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Greg Beckley, of Indianapolis, Ind., for his question:

IS THE INK THE OCTOPUS SHOOTS OUT POISONOUS?

Perhaps more than any other sea creature, the octopus makes our flesh crawl and imaginations soar. Truth is, though, this eight-armed creature is quite shy, and deathly afraid of anything larger than he is. Although a few are truly tremendous, most of the hundred-odd varieties grow no larger than three feet across. Some fully grown adults are so tiny they could sit on your fingernail.

Some kinds of octopuses inject a poison from their horny jaws that paralyzes their prey. But the black fluid they squirt from the siphon, a funnel-shaped opening under their head, is evidently not poisonous. Scientists report that this "ink" has no effect on human skin and seems to have none on fish passing through it. For a long time it was thought to be only a smoke screen to hide the octopus from enemies. Recent research, however, suggests that it may paralyze the sense of smell in the moray eel, who likes nothing better than octopus for dinner.

Clean your air conditioner and save some money.

A dirty air conditioner has to work harder. That wastes money.

When your air conditioner is dirty, it has to work harder. That takes more energy. And you end up wasting money. A good periodic cleaning will make your air conditioner more efficient, and will help you save on its operating costs. It's possible to clean most window units in only about 10 minutes. You should check your owner's manual for specific cleaning instructions, but in most cases the steps to follow in cleaning are very simple. And the more thoroughly you clean, the more money you'll save.

Vacuum the filter and save a little.

First pull the plug. Then take off the front panel, and carefully remove the filter. You can vacuum it while it's still in place, but it's easier to clean the filter well if you remove it first.

Wash the filter and save a little more.

Your owner's manual will tell you whether the filter in your air conditioner is the kind that can be washed and reused. If it is, you can get the filter even cleaner by first vacuuming it, and then hand washing it in warm water and a gentle detergent. The

More ways to save.

The idea of using timers on air conditioners is catching on. You can plug your window unit into an automatic timer made especially for air conditioners. It works just like the kind of timer you'd use to turn your lights on automatically when you're away from home. You can set the timer so that your air conditioner comes on an hour or so before you get home from work on a hot summer day. That way your house will be comfortable when you arrive, but you'll be using less electricity. And your air conditioner won't be running all day long.

There's one last thing you should remember about air conditioners, especially if you're thinking about buying a new one.

Air conditioner efficiency varies from model to model, depending on what we call the Energy Efficiency Ratio, or EER. The higher the EER, the more cooling you get for your electric dollar, year after year. It's easy to figure out the EER. Attached to every air conditioner is a metal plate showing that machine's watts and BTUs. To get the EER, just divide the watts into the BTUs. We recommend an EER of 8 or more.

The more efficiently you use energy, the less energy you waste, and the more money you save. And an efficient air conditioner can save you plenty.

'Bus Stop' worth seeing but not right for Edie

Mid-week review

Edie Adams is a multi-talented lady of considerable charm. If smoking had not been ruled hazardous to one's health, I'm sure all America would be lighting up Muriel Cigars because of her provocative and persuasive television commercials.

And her abilities as a singer and actress have been demonstrated in nightclubs, on stage, in movies and on TV with some success. She won a Tony Award for her performance as Daisy Mae in the "Lil Abner" musical on Broadway.

But I think "Bus Stop" is not the proper vehicle to display Miss Adams' acting talents. The role she portrays in the William Inge play that just opened at Drury Lane North in the Lincolnshire Marriott calls for a younger, more vulnerable personality.

THAT SAID, may I add that the production nevertheless is excellent, well worth seeing because Miss Adams is surrounded by an exceptionally strong cast.

"Bus Stop" takes place in a small Kansas town during an early March snowstorm. Passengers on the bus out of Kansas City to Topeka are stranded in the little cafe that serves as the local bus stop till roads can be cleared. (Only those who've lived in small town U.S.A. can fully appreciate the authenticity of the setting.)

Playwright Inge has peopled his play with an intriguing set of characters, and the strength of the touch-equally well acted by Tony Lincoln.

Fourth passenger on the stranded bus is Dr. Gerald Lyman, an eloquent, drunken former professor who doth protest too much that he is free. Robert Ingham performs ably as the thrice wed, thrice shed scholar who serves as Playwright Inge's mouthpiece. Listen carefully as he speaks.

Stuck with this assortment of characters for the duration of the storm is the cafe owner, aptly named Grace. Anne Haney is thoroughly believable as the good-humored, hard-working "grass widow," a strong woman deserted by her husband and periodically needing a man to retain her sanity.

BEVERLY FELDT appears as Alma, the idealistic high school girl who works for Grace as a waitress and has yet to be rebuffed by life. Hers, too, is a convincing performance.

Barry Hope as a compassionate yet authoritative sheriff and Pete Candoli (Miss Adams' husband) as the bus driver complete this excellent cast.

Worth a mention, the set designed by Boris Aronson that has behind-the-counter accouterments in skeleton form so the audience may see through to action across stage, yet allowing Alma and Grace to wash dishes, cook and remove food from the refrigerator.

ingly humorous drama lies in the interplay among them that reveals so much of each and simultaneously weaves a plot that changes their lives by the time the bus leaves for Topeka. It's a play of enduring quality and the Drury Lane crew do it justice.

Edie Adams plays Cherie, a woefully untalented nightclub performer — she calls herself a chanteuse, explaining to the young waitress Alma, "Hildegard is a chanteuse." Cherie has been literally kidnapped by a boisterous, seemingly arrogant cowboy who wants to marry her and take her to his Montana ranch. To say that Miss Adams is miscast is not to say she does a poor job as Cherie. She plays the city-tarnished Ozark country girl with feeling and sympathy.

CHELIE ROSS is superb as Bo Decker, the cowboy smitten by Cherie and unschooled in the finer points of wooing a lady. What appears as arrogance really is cover for a young man made shy in the presence of women. His companion and mentor, Virgil, is

One bid that's universal

One jump to game that is given the same general meaning all over the world is the raise from one to four of partner's first- or second-hand spade or heart opening.

It says: "Partner, I have good trumps, not much in high cards but the sort of hand that is likely to make game even if your opening is a minimum. I don't expect you to bid again but if you do, remember I don't have two aces or anything that looks like an opening bid."

North's jump to four spades was a trifle weak for this bid, but from South's standpoint it was just what the doctor ordered. He used Blackwood to check for aces. North did not need an ace for his jump bid. When North showed one ace, South could bid six with every expectation of success.

There was nothing to the play. South ruffed the second club, drew trumps and claimed.

Monroe debuts as Tigers top Sox

Special to The Herald

DETROIT — Mount Prospect's Larry Monroe made his major league pitching debut here Monday night, tossing two innings in relief, as the White Sox dropped a 5-4 decision to the Tigers.

Monroe, who was the first White Sox pick in the free agent draft when he graduated from Forest View High School in 1974, nearly got the win as an eighth inning homer by Jim Spencer and a two run circuit blast in the ninth by Chet Lemon brought the Sox to within one run.

Monroe, only 20 years old, joined the team in Chicago Sunday from the Sox Double-A team in Knoxville, Tenn. And though his debut was on the road, he wasn't without rooters by any means.

"I was born in Detroit and a lot of my family still live here," said Monroe after the game. "I had to leave 32 passes for my family."

Joining his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Monroe of Mount Prospect, were aunts, uncles and even his grandmother. "I haven't been able to see her much due to baseball, so it's really been nice," he said.

The lanky righthander started the seventh inning in relief of Rich Gossage, who gave up all five Tiger runs. Monroe threw six straight balls before he found the strike zone.

"My sinker was breaking out of the strike zone and I had to make some adjustments," said Monroe, who admitted he was just a bit nervous. "I didn't realize where I was until after the first hitter was on base."

Larry Monroe

Making his debut just all that much more memorable was a snafu with his uniform. Monroe was assigned number 41, which he wore on his home uniform Sunday, although he did not get into the game.

When he received his road uniform Monday, however, he learned that seamstresses made a mistake and transposed the digits to read 14.

Monroe, who lost a 1-0 decision at Knoxville last Thursday, walked the first two men he faced but got out of trouble by throwing a double play ball to Detroit's Ron LeFlore. He struck out two in two innings, both times to end the frame.

In the ninth, Monroe set down the Tigers in order.

The Sox, who have a bevy of young pitching talent and will be trying to evaluate its major league potential during September, figure to give Monroe a good look.

"I don't know if I'll get a start. I was told I'm to be used in long relief for now," he said.

"I felt good out there," said Monroe. "Only one guy hit the ball hard and it was caught."

Ray Bare got the win, going the route for the Tigers to even his record at 6-6. Gossage, now 8-12, took the loss.

Bare scattered eight hits and helped snap a three-game Tiger losing streak.

The Sox jumped out to a quick 1-0 lead in the first, but Detroit countered with a pair of runs in the bottom of the frame to take the lead for good.

The Tigers added a run in the sixth and two more on a bases loaded single by Mark Wagner, recently called up from Evansville by the Tigers. Wagner, who carries a good-field, no-hit tag, is batting a cool .500 for the Tigers in 12 times at bat.

The Sox continue the series here tonight. Ken Brett (7-8) will face Dave Roberts (12-12) of the Tigers.

HUFFING AND PUFFING, these Schaumburg football candidates spring through early-morning drills on first day of practice Monday. The Saxons and head coach Bob Ferguson will be gunning for a third straight Mid-Suburban South title in 1976.

Nine area golfers in field

State amateur event opens today

Nine Herald area golfers will tee it up today in the 122-man Illinois State Amateur Championship at Frankfort's Prestwick Country Club.

Only one of the area players in this 46th annual tourney reached this select field because of an exemption — Tom Jacobsen of Schaumburg.

The eight others were among 468 amateurs who attempted to qualify from around the state. Three are Mount Prospect residents — Fred Fassnacht, Craig Ridley and Dave Nelson.

Arlington Heights players will be Dirk Andersen and Scott Burkhardt.

Buffalo Grove will be represented by Larry Utley and Tom Benjamin.

Dick VanDerSande, like Jacobsen, is also from Schaumburg.

The tourney, sponsored by the Chicago District Golf Assn., is set up for 18 holes today and Wednesday with the low 30 scorers and ties playing a final 36 holes on Thursday.

Mick Soli, of BeKalb, will defend his title. Last year he won a sudden-death playoff against Jay Haas at Bloomington Country Club. Haas turned professional earlier this summer.

Figuring to challenge Soli are Lance Ten Broeck, of Chicago, winner of the CDGA amateur in July; Tom Evans, of Northbrook, runner-up to Ten Broeck in the CDGA amateur; Gary Hallberg, of Barrington, recent winner of the Western Junior championship; and Philip Kenny, of Northbrook, a semifinalist in the recent CDGA amateur.

Former champions in the field include Glen Ellyn's Dave Huske (1963), Highland Park's Norando Nannini (1949), Wilmette's Ace Ellis (1962), Glencoe's Tom Matey (1966), Bloomington's Mike Milligan (1974), Highland Park's Earl Liff (1965) and Rockford's Gene Readette (1955).

Ed Moehling, Jr., a former star on Arlington High's state championship team, was one of only three back-to-back winners of this tournament (1960-61).

Prestwick, located just east of Joliet, measures 6,975 yards and plays to a par 72. It also hosted the tourney on two other occasions.

In 1965, Earl Liff edged Wayne Etherton by four strokes, scoring a 72-hole total of 293 (73-71-74-75). Jim Ten Broeck slipped his brother, Rick, by two shots with a 293 (71-73-74-75) in 1968. Eight years later, brother Lance has the opportunity to put the family name on the trophy again.

The course record is held by Harry Toscano (30-36) 66.

'Freebies' out! Sign of times

CHAMPAIGN — Heaven help us. Media "freebies" are out!

In a bold move, the Big Ten Conference is risking (??) its public relations image by eliminating complimentary tickets for the press.

It strikes at Midwest journalism's most vulnerable area, the pocketbook.

Working press credentials aren't affected. They'll be provided as usual for those with an official University of Illinois job in the press box this fall, but the age-old policy of handing out complimentary football (and basketball) tickets to members of the radio, TV and print media has been eliminated under Big Ten edict.

Commissioner Wayne Duke explained the action as another vital step by league members striving to bring budgets into balance.

"The policy was voted in last February and reaffirmed in May," said Duke. "There will be working passes for those in the press box, but no extra tickets in the stands will be provided."

"The league has also eliminated 'comps' for game officials in football and basketball. This is part of a trend of curtailment in many areas."

This sector has drawn Cecil Coleman's attention ever since he arrived at Illinois from Wichita State. The UI system of comps has gotten out of hand, and Cecil did not make himself the most popular individual in the Twin Cities when he began biting into it.

"It was way out of line," said Coleman. "All kinds of people were getting free tickets, and when we started checking into the reasons, many times the response was, 'I don't know. It's just always been done.' We had to put a stop to it."

It was not a fun task. But the fact was: most of the persons receiving freebies were in a lot better financial shape than the Athletic Association to which they tendered their free-of-charge allegiance.

Coleman has continued to provide football tickets at a surcharge ($2.50 this fall) for former lettermen, but only for the first five years after departure from campus. Also on that surcharge list are all members of the Illinois High School Coaches Assn., with whom the AA seeks to maintain strong relations for recruiting purposes.

All full-time members of the AA staff — coaches, secretaries and workers — receive two free football tickets per game, and the coaches also receive extra tickets for their immediate families. Athletic Board members receive two each, and a number of comps are set aside for recruiting visits by athletes and their parents.

The AA does not provide tickets for legislators, as is popularly believed. That is done by the UI president's office, which purchases tickets from the AA for the purpose of creating better relations with the legislative body which makes crucial decisions on the massive UI budget.

What does the media cut mean in 1976? According to UI sports publicist Tab Bennett, 236 season football tickets were handed out to radio, TV and newspaper people last year. Of that number, 140 paid no surcharge of any kind, while the remainder paid the 1975 surcharge fee of $2 per game ticket.

At $8 per ticket in 1976, the AA should make new income in that area.

"The one thing I'm concerned about," said Bennett, "is that some media individuals may want to bring members of their family into the press box with their working press credentials."

"It could create a bad public relations situation. I had favored Elroy Hirsch's (Wisconsin) proposal to allow two comp tickets for media representatives actually working in the press box, but it was voted down by the Big Ten athletic directors."

Duke calls the decision "a sign of the times." He adds:

"It is part of the big picture. At the NCAA level, it has been proposed that no more free NCAA basketball tickets be given to the basketball coaches associations. This was passed but the cry from the National Assn. of Basketball Coaches was strong enough to cause implementation to be delayed. But you can see the direction we're going. The new cuts are certainly not confined to the media."

The new approach is, of course, long overdue and much-needed reform. And it takes some of us off the hook. Now, when family and friends inquire about an "extra ticket," they'll be presented with this column as evidence we're not holding back.

The St. Viator football program got a big lift over the weekend in the form of some unexpected good news from the Illinois High School Association.

The IHSA "reexamined" its figures and restored Viator to the 5A division in the state playoffs and nobody is happier over the change than those at St. Viator.

"The kids are happy, that's for sure," said Bill Pirman, St. Viator athletic director. "And it's sure going to help our scheduling in years to come."

St. Viator found out it had been moved down to the smaller enrollment category of 4A when the state mailed out its master football schedule several weeks ago. And though competing with smaller schools would have enhanced the school's chances of winning a state title, school officials still wanted to remain in the large school 5A category where they have already enjoyed success.

In 1974, the Lions from Viator won their first tournament game before falling to powerful Willowbrook. Viator coach Jim Lyne's record against 5A competition during the past five years is 35-11-4. Viator has qualified for the 5A playoffs two years in a row.

Viator was restored to the 5A level when IHSA officials rechecked their enrollment figures and determined the average enrollment in Viator's East Suburban Catholic Conference was 2,200, not 2,066.

"I don't know what happened," said Pirman. "We received a packet of years is 35-11-4. Viator has qualified was a last minute release saying we had been moved back to 5A."

The news wasn't so good for schools in the Big Nine conference, which was dropped to class 4A to make room for Viator. That means Rockford Boylan, last year's runner up in the 5A division, will be competing at the 4A level this year.

The Lions opened fall practice Wednesday and will finish two-a-day drills today.

Though the Lions lost prep All-American Scott Zettek through graduation, Lyne will have a bunch of young talent to work with.

Junior quarterback John Josten will be a key to Lion success this season.

Lyne will also have to do some work with his defensive line, which lost three of four regular performers last season.

St. Viator opens its season schedule at Forest View on Friday, Sept. 10.

Bronco stars win two tourneys

The Bronco All-Stars of Mount Prospect finished a busy summer with two firsts and a second in post-season tournaments.

The All-Stars took firsts in the Franklin Park Invitational and Waukegan's Bob O'Farrell Tournament and a second in Buffalo Grove's Andrew Farrissey event.

Vic Rose, Ralph Trossen, Joe Donofrio and Rick Robertshaw served as coaches of the Bronco team.

Eagle, three aces in one amazing month

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — John Pope played golf for 50 years and never had a hole-in-one. This month he has had three aces and one eagle.

The 62-year-old self-described weekend golfer says luck is responsible for the success that began Aug. 5 at the Delaware Country Club, when he eagled the par 4, 320-yard 7th hole with a five wood.

Just two days later, playing in Danville, Pa., his ball was on the green when an opponent's chip shot hit his ball and knocked it into the hole.

The U.S. Golf Assn. rules say Pope is entitled to an ace on his scorecard, but not an official hole-in-one.

He aced the 175-yard, No. 4 hole at Delaware with a five-iron on Aug. 9.

Last Thursday, Pope fired a six-iron shot into the cup on the 152-yard No. 9 hole at Delaware.

Pope, whose best round is a 66, said, "It's a lot of luck. I've played for 50 years and I never had a hole-in-one. I'm thrilled, naturally."

GOING FOR SIX. The Hersey Huskies go through opening-day drills in preparation for 1976 football season, aiming for unprecedented sixth straight Mid-Suburban North championship. Coach Joe Gliwa's gridders were 9-1 last year, losing only to Loyola in playoffs.

Court voids NCAA coaching staff limits

OKLAHOMA CITY — A judge held Monday the NCAA, the governing body of collegiate athletics, cannot force the University of Oklahoma to cut back its football coaching staff.

The temporary injunction issued by Judge Charles L. Owens in state district court against bylaw 12-1 of the National Collegiate Athletic Association applies only to Oklahoma. But NCAA attorney James Fellers said he could see it having a "domino effect" throughout the country.

The only other major power to challenge the NCAA rule, which required Division I members to carry only eight assistant football coaches by Aug. 1, was the University of Alabama. That case is in federal court in Alabama.

Fellers indicated the NCAA would appeal. Owens gave him until Aug. 29 to file an answer and said he would then set a hearing on a permanent injunction.

NBA 'Super Games' to benefit youth

NEW YORK — Pro basketball players from half of the NBA clubs appeared at a news conference Monday to announce two doubleheaders Sept. 8-9 at Madison Square Garden to benefit inner-city educational, recreational and economic development programs in the U.S.

Scheduled to play are Julius "Dr. J." Erving of the New York Nets, Artis Gilmore of the Bulls, Bob Lanier of Detroit, Charlie Scott of Boston, and George McGinnis of Philadelphia, among others.

The two-day tournament called "Super games '76," will involve four teams of NBA players: New York-New Jersey, Buffalo-Washington, Chicago-Louisville and Detroit-Cleveland.

The games' proceeds will go to "Each One, Teach One" groups in many U.S. cities.

"Each One, Teach One" is part of the program of Harlem Professionals, Inc., conducted by Bob McCullough, who has been involved also with summertime basketball here for pro players.

Wei leads Chicago to third in tennis

Paul Wei tied for the best individual singles record to lead the Chicago entry to a third place tie in the National City Boys' Tennis Playoff at San Diego this week.

The senior at Arlington High School won five of seven singles matches as Chicago tied Dallas for third place with 44 points.

Atlanta won the tournament with 51 points and San Diego finished second with 45.

Wei teamed with Libertyville's Kreg Yingst and lost their only doubles setback of the tournament 6-4, 6-4 to Tom Marsh and Tracy McDougal of Atlanta.

Wei beat Atlanta's Kelly Thurman 7-5, 6-4 at No. 1 singles.

MSU gridders appeal suspension

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Six Michigan State University football players have decided to join senior defensive back Joe Hunt in asking a federal court to overturn their suspensions by the Big Ten school.

Lansing attorney Frederic S. Abood said Monday he will file a motion this week before U.S. District Judge Noel P. Fox, asking that the six players be added to Hunt's case.

All seven were declared ineligible for varying periods for their roles in football recruiting violations that ended with Michigan State being placed on three years probation by the NCAA.

Abood is representing offensive end Mike Cobb, who was declared ineligible for the first five games, and defensive tackle Larry Bethea, defensive back Ted Bell, linebacker Jim Epolito, guard Melvin Land and quarterback Ed Smith, all of whom were ordered to sit out the first game with arch rival Ohio State.

State help planned for Patriots

BOSTON — Special legislation aimed at averting the possible financial collapse of the New England Patriots football team is being rushed through the Massachusetts legislature, UPI learned Monday.

Negotiations on the bill, which would ease current laws governing the merger of corporations, have been underway between legislative leaders, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and Patriots representatives for more than a week.

According to several sources the bill is aimed at averting the takeover of the Patriots by a Chicago bank.

Charles Sullivan, son of Patriots' owner William "Billy" Sullivan, acknowledged Monday that his father has a $5 million loan from an unnamed Chicago bank.

Browns sneak past Eagles, 21-17

PHILADELPHIA — Backup quarterback Brian Sipe passed for two second quarter touchdowns Monday night and the Cleveland Browns continued a pre-season resurgence with a 21-17 victory over the winless Philadelphia Eagles.

Sipe, third-year quarterback from San Diego State, played the first half in place of Mike Givens and engineered scoring drives of 86, 19 and 69 yards to give the Browns, 3-11 last year, their third straight exhibition victory.

The loss was the fourth in a row for the Eagles under new coach Dick Vermeil.

Rookie Mike Pruitt, brother of starting running back Greg Pruitt, ended the first Browns drive, 86 yards in 11 plays, when he scored on a one-yard plunge in the second quarter.

Thirteen seconds later, free safety Thom Darden intercepted a deflected Mike Boryla pass on the Eagles 19. Sipe passed three yards to rookie running back Brian Dunkin for the touchdown that made it 14-0.

End of the line for Raiders' Blanda?

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — George Blanda, the Oakland Raiders' soon-to-be 49-year-old kicking wonder, said Monday he expected to be waived this week when National Football League teams cut down to the roster limit of 49.

"It's only speculation on my part, but I figure they may waive me this week," the 26-year veteran said. "I don't care for being here as an insurance policy in case the other kicker can't cut it."

"It's been frustrating and discouraging for me after all the years I've helped this team."

In four exhibition games, Blanda is yet to step on the playing field. Rookie Fred Steinfort of Boston College, a fifth-round draft choice, has done all the placement kicking for the Raiders.

"I'm not trying to cause problems for Al Davis or the Raiders because I have no animosity whatsoever. I just want to be waived out of here so I can be a free agent."

And in other sports news...

The Miami Dolphins Monday asked waivers on former star running back Mercury Morris and at the same time, asked 35-year-old Nick Buoniconti to come out of retirement and rejoin the team, which is in desperate need of help at linebacker. . . . The Dolphins also announced that safety Jake Scott, suspended without pay by coach Don Shula after a dispute over Scott's playing with a shoulder injury, had reported to the team's practice Monday. . . . Scheduled arraignment Monday of Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Pat Zachry, charged with assaulting a 17-year-old autograph seeker, was postponed until Sept. 20. . . . Boston Red Sox shortstop Rick Burleson had 17 hits and a .462 average to be unanimously named the American League's "Player of the Week."
